LABORITES ASSAIL POLICY OF BRITAIN

Possibilities of War Involving Britain, Japan and Russia Are Stressed in Labor Manifesto.

BY CHARLES M. McCANN.
London, January 26.—England once more is faced with preparations for possible war.

While the defending forces of Marshal Sun Chuan-fang crumbled before the attacking armies of south China thousands of miles away, the British government virtually admitted that its hosts of soldiers and marines en route to Shanghai were preparing for defense of the entire Chinese city as well as the British concession.

The possibility of war which would involve Russia, Japan and other nations was heard in a manifesto of the labor party which strove to avert British armed action in China. Socialists denounced the new "British expeditionary force."

Former Premier Ramsay MacDonald and the laborites in parliament indicated that before the thousands of marines, sailors and regular army men reach Shanghai their assignment to Far Eastern duty will be severely criticized in the house of commons.

Preparations for an armed clash in China, long regarded as a danger spot, internationally, proceeded in London,
in Portsmouth and in other English cities. One thousand marines sailed from Portsmouth while cheering hundreds lined the docks as they did in 1914 and afterward. Along the road to Kirkcubright 26 motor lorries carried equipment to that port for early transport to Shanghai. And in London a queue of ex-service men formed outside the recruiting office seeking to enlist for service in the troubled Chinese area.

Troop Movement Pushed.

The laborite manifesto urging tolerance in China failed to halt troop movements. It had urged the working class of England to "express hostility to war with China and to plan industrial action, if necessary, to prevent the threatened calamity." It urged Great Britain formally to recognize the full independence and sovereignty of China, to forego extraterritorial rights and occupation of concessions and to enter into full negotiations with the Chinese nationalists. Withdrawal of British gunboats was necessary, said the manifesto, as it would "do more to protect British lives than all the gunboats, bayonets, tanks and bombs that our government could command."

The foreign office made a brief reply to the labor plea, saying that it was obliged to undertake the duty of protecting Britishers in China.

FOREIGN CONTROL OF RADIO BARRED

Measure Put in Final Shape for Action by Congress and Approval
Is Expected.

Washington, January 26.—(AP)— Legislation to maintain government control over all channels of interstate and foreign radio transmission was put in final shape today by senate and house conferees for action by congress.

The conference report will be presented in the house tomorrow by Representative White, republican, Maine, but action on it by both the house and senate probably will be deferred until next week.

Although Representative Davis, democrat, Tennessee, declined to sign the report and may submit minority views, the conferees predicted that the measure, as redrafted after months of effort would be approved and sent to the president.

Powers of Commission.
For one year after the bill becomes a law a federal commission of five members would have complete control over radio and after that time it would have final authority in all controversies arising from decisions of the secretary of commerce, who would have initial control after one year.

The commission would have authority to classify radio stations; prescribe the nature of the service to be rendered by each; assign wave lengths to the various classes of and to individual stations; determine the location of classes of stations or individual stations; regulate the kind of apparatus to be used with respect to its external effects; make regulations to prevent interference between stations;
establish areas or zones to be served by any station; make special regulations applying to radio stations engaged in broadcasting, and have authority to hold hearings and compel production of books and documents.

Details Are Given.

Again on the night of the shooting
Mrs. Chappell had another argument with her father because of Mrs.
Thomason's presence in the home and threatened to shoot him. Hearing the quarrel, she testified, she got out of bed and went to the rear of the house and heard her father assert,
"Emma, let me have that gun." Mrs.
Chappell got the gun from a bedroom. She pleaded with Mrs. Chappell "not to do anything," she said.

Her father had no weapon and made no assault upon Mrs. Chappell, the witness said, and after Mrs. Chappell got the weapon he followed her into a front room and then out onto the porch, pleading with her to let him have the gun. The shooting took place on the front steps, and he walked back up the steps after being shot and tried to sit in the swing, the daughter said. At the time of the shooting the witness said she was standing behind the swing.

After the shooting, Mrs. Thomason said she went to the telephone and called an ambulance and asked her to send an ambulance and notify county police. Mrs. Chappell threatened to kill her if she called the police, she said.

But few additional facts concerning the shooting were brought out by William Schley Howell, of defense counsel, in cross-examination.

DRASTIC CHANGES IN CITY SCHOOL METHODS URGED

Citizens Advisory Committee Recommends Radical Economies in Conduct of School System.

Automatic salary increases for teachers would be abandoned, and the visual education department and the bureau of statistics and attendance abolished, if certain recommendations of the citizens' advisory committee are followed, it became known Wednesday night.

This would mean a saving of approximately $200,000 in teachers' salaries alone between September 1—the time the increases are slated to become effective—and the first of the year, and a material saving of money in pruning out the departments, it was pointed out.

It would bring the "B" budget relatively adopted by the board within the amount allocated for school purposes and would prevent any possible shortage of funds in the school department this year.

Would Abolish Board.

Although the recommendations of the advisory board fail to specify any cuts, the budget as released by it, reduces the instructional service the exact amount of the increase, and the general control fund cut equals the salaries of supervisors and clerks of the visual education and statistical departments, it was said.

In addition to financial recommendations, the committee advocated abolition of the present board of education and the present method of election; elimination of free textbooks; continuance of kindergartens only through payment of tuition; consolidation of Tech High and Boys' High schools; revision of the present scale of teachers' salaries; consolidation of many grammar schools.

Recommendation was made by the committee that expenditures "be limited" to $2,725,000 as against a total of $3,136,716.45, as proposed in "B," adopted as the tentative budget of the board of education.
Items listed in the proposed expenditures do not include debt service, $10,000; capital outlay, $8,000; and auxiliary agencies, $10,966.65, which were listed on the "B" budget.

The report, which was addressed to the mayor and general council, the board of education and citizens of Atlanta, revealed for the first time that the board of education had been drunk or not, said Mrs. Heenan. She was being cross-examined by Brown-

Daddy Browning Next Will Tell of Peaches

ATTEMPT TO BRIBE WITNESS LAID TO DADDY

BY SAM LOVE.

White Plains, N. Y., January 26.— Daddy Browning and his story of what a woman can do to a trusting old philanthropist with a rented automobile comprise the next scene in the Browning separation spectacle.

The suit for divorce and custody of the toys was suddenly put over until Monday and a disappointed White Plains crowd filed out of the courtroom Wednesday afternoon to spread the word to a disappointed world.

It was a crowning blow in a day of might-have-beens.

For instance, "Peaches" girlhood diary full of her first heartthrobs for a swain with neither an auto nor a bald pate, might have been read into the evidence. But it wasn't—by a hair's-breadth decision of Supreme Court Justice Albert H. S. Seeger.

And another of Daddy Browning's gooses might have come home to roost.
But that didn't happen either.

Browning's mother-in-law, however, gave a detailed account of a drunken orgy of the funny old Cinderella man on a two-ounce vial of pre-war stuff.
She gave a typical mother-in-law slant on the marital happiness of the 15-and-16-year-old "Peaches" and the 51-plus-year-old Edward West Browning.

"I'm drunk, mother," Mrs. Catherine Heenan, the mother-in-law, said Browning announced as a preliminary to the soul-stirring events of that memorable evening when he threatened to end it all—first nearly dispatching the sturdy "Peaches."

Life had got the best of Browning for a moment. It was during the time when Peaches was biting her tongue and looking wild. It had been a hard day at the Browning real-estate office. Mrs. Heenan had been summoned to Kew Gardens to sleep in the same room with Peaches.
Browning's nerves were in that state,
Mrs. Heenan said, when he was afraid to.

Browning Guffaws.

While his mother-in-law told the story of a strong man's momentary weakness, Browning threw back his head and guffawed in pantomime. He is not one of those men who cannot smile indulgently at his own antics.

"I didn't know whether he was drunk or not," said Mrs. Heenan. She was being cross-examined by Browning's lawyer, John W. Mack. "But

"Hard-Boiled Virgin" Author Detests Writing, Marriage

BOOK SCANDALIZED ATLANTA, MISS NEWMAN SAYS

New York, January 26.—Frances Newman, a very candid and exceedingly clever writer, who has just set her home town, Atlanta, into something of a state of literary epilepsy with the publication of her first novel,
"The Hard-Boiled Virgin," tried hard to define her heroine's attitude as she discussed her book in her suite at the Algonquin hotel, where she is stopping on the eve of her departure for Italy.

"She was just naturally virginal, and she couldn't be anything else no matter what happened to her," she said of her heroine, Katherine Faraday. Of herself, she said she is hopelessly sentimental and romantic, but prefers tinkering with literary style rather than with the soul.

Traditions, deep-rooted and formal, fight hard in Frances Newman to assert themselves. She is a strange mixture of a very modern woman intellectually emancipated from conventionality, and a southern girl who has been carefully reared to remember all the proprieties.

"The folks back home are simply scandalized," she acknowledged in a drawl so broad that it behooves her listeners to pay close heed or she is only half understood. "Women there never write books, that is none of their ever did, and they don't think my book is a shining example of what a lady from Atlanta should turn out. Because I have written my story around that city they are quite sure it is autobiographical, and that I did all the things my heroine has done."

Actually, Frances Newman never dreamed of writing a book while she was living at home. Because she loved to read she took a job as librarian in order to be near the source of supply. She knew all authors, living and dead, by name, but never saw one in the actual flesh and blood until six years ago.

"And I think that writing is contagious, like measles," she laughed.
"For not until I met James Branch Hughes did I know what it was like."

KELLOGG OUTLINES AMERICAN POLICY IN CHINESE CRISIS

U. S. WILL AGREE TO NEW TREATIES

Kellogg Declares America Will Enter Into Negotiations Singly or With Other Powers.

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.
(By Telex Wire to The Constitution and The United States Tribune.)

Washington, January 26.—So long as Chinese authorities fail to protect Americans, the United States, in pursue of a "fundamental duty," will protect its citizens and their property in China, Secretary of State Kellogg asserted today in a statement setting forth the Chinese policy of the Coolidge administration.

In order to discharge this fundamental duty, America has dispatched naval forces, including marines, to China, with broad instruction to protect American lives and property, actively either singly or in cooperation with the forces of other powers.

The United States, Mr. Kellogg declared, is ready to negotiate with China, either singly or jointly with other powers, for the restoration to China of tariff autonomy and establishment of higher customs duties and for the abolition of extraterritoriality.

Purpose of Statement.

The public statement was issued and called to China and other countries for several purposes. One was to set forth the lines on which the administration is ready to proceed in furtherance of the economic rehabilitation of China, following the example of Great Britain, which announced its policy in a public statement several weeks ago. Another purpose was to show that the administration is in harmony with the Porter resolution, approved by the house committee on foreign affairs which proposes independent negotiations with China to replace the unequal tariff and extraterritoriality treaties.

The determination of the administration to protect American lives and property under the chaotic conditions obtaining in China is declared in the conclusion of the Kellogg statement.
"The government of the United States," says the secretary, "has watched with sympathetic interest the nationalistic awakening of China and welcomes every advance made by the Chinese people toward reorganizing their system of government."

Strict Neutrality.

"During the difficult years since the establishment of the new regime in 1912, the government of the United States has endeavored in every way to maintain a strict attitude of the most careful and strict neutrality as among the several factions that have dis-

It's the Same Old Story But With Ever-Changing Thrills

Every romance written since the beginning of time has had

Clowns, Elephants, Wild Men To Attend Debutantes' Ball

MANAGER HOLLAND DOLLARS, vice president of the Atlanta Biltmore, will have a squad of husky helpers busy early this morning. The helpers will be scattering sawdust across the shining floor of the gorgeous Biltmore Georgian ballroom.

Softly, men! Gently! This isn't an announcement of the opening of a barroom right here in town or anything like that. It is merely part of the preparation for the Debutantes' club ball of 1927 to be given for the benefit of charity Friday night at 9 o'clock.

Think of it—sawdust on the Biltmore ballroom floor! Isn't that just about all that need be said to attract a crowd who will pay their pennies, nickels, dimes and dollars toward having a good time and at the same time doing a good deed?

Fancy it, will you—a tent and side shows and all that! A perfectly sober person will be able to go to the Biltmore tomorrow night and see purple elephants, green giraffes, lavender bear constrictors and clowns. Say, clowns! Every costume shop in town has rented out twice as many clown suits as the shop has in stock. Sewing women have been busy for a week on crazy duds with ruffled collars. There will be enough

LYMAN GAGE DIES IN CALIFORNIA

Former Secretary of Treasury Under Two Presidents One of Country's Ablest Bankers.

San Diego, January 26.—(AP)—Lyman J. Gage, former secretary of the treasury and recognized for many years as one of the leading bankers of the country, died at Point Loma near here today. He retired from active business in 1906, his last public appearance being in 1920 when he was one of a party of distinguished men who made a trip to Japan.

Mr. Gage was born in De Ruyter,
N. Y., June 28, 1836 and up to 1861, when he arrived in Chicago where he achieved national fame, he had been an office boy and accountant. He became president of the First National Bank of Chicago in 1861 and continued that position until he was drafted to the secretaryship of the treasury by President McKinley. He also served in the same capacity under President Roosevelt.

It was while Mr. Gage was secretary of the treasury in 1897 that his most outstanding work was accomplished. This was the floating of an issue of $200,000,000 bonds authorized at the beginning of the Spanish-American war. The rate was 3 per cent and the loan, after much doubt had been expressed, was taken by individual offers from more than 320, 000 subscribers.

Mr. Gage always looked upon the floating of the bond issue as the best achievement of his public life. He said he was popularized American war loans. The experiment justified itself and strengthened the nation, he often told friends.

MERCHANT MARINE POLICY IS SOUGHT

BY ALFRED P. SECK.

Washington, January 26.—Congress will be asked this session to determine a future policy for the American merchant marine—whether it be government owned and operated, government owned and privately operated, or private owned and operated, declared Senator Hiram Johnson, California, today.

Johnson is chairman of the senate commerce subcommittee empowered by resolution to investigate the proposed sale or charter of the government-owned North Atlantic fleet. During recent hearings the subcommittee decided to extend itself and formulate a merchant marine policy.

Two policy bills now are being drafted by the shipping board to be given to Senator Wesley Jones, Washington, republican, chairman of the commerce committee, for presentation to congress. Although details of these bills have not been made public, it is understood that one measure calls for continuation of government ownership and operation with the construction of two new Atlantic liners, while the other proposal is for private ownership and operation with some form of a subsidy. The first bill also is said to contain a provision for government ownership and charter to private firms.

Nearly 900 ships, valued at millions of dollars, are involved in the proposals. Three hundred and twenty-six of these ships are now in operation and 550 are tied up.

Senators and shipping board officials assert two additional liners, to cost approximately $30,000,000, are necessary to balance the North Atlantic passenger fleet, now operated by the United States lines under the Emergency Fleet corporation.

In the first proposal, the two additional ships would be constructed by the government with funds made available by transfer from the $59,000,000 revolving operating fund now controlled by the shipping board. Under the second proposal the new vessels would be built with private capital by the company taking over the five ships of the United States line.

Whether the government retains the fleet or not, it is proposed to recondition the America, partially destroyed by fire, at a cost of approximately $2,000,000. This liner then would be added to the U. S. group, consisting of the Leviathan, George Washington, Republic, President Harding and the President Roosevelt.

The second shipping board proposal for private ownership and operation is understood to call for the construction of mail contracts, which amount to $7,000,000 or $8,000,000 yearly. At the present time, 30 per cent of the mail is carried in foreign bottoms. The sums paid out by the government for transporting the mail returns about $17,000,000 annually. Foreign ships carry United States mail for 26 cents a pound while American ships are paid 80 cents with some mail contracts still higher.

The majority of committee members is believed to favor continuation of government ownership and operation and American merchant marine is established firmly on the seven seas.

ENGLAND ON VERGE OF WAR IN CHINA

of the south, will attempt to hold at bay the victorious army.

Neutral Zone Planned.

One report said that a neutral zone would be declared by Great Britain in the Shanghai river basin, and that the Chinese government would be informed that the British march must halt outside the business capital of that part of the country.

This is taken to mean that the British forces are being prepared to meet the Chinese on Chinese soil as well as in the concession, which foreigners hold by treaty. Admitting that such a plan is being considered "hypothetically" those close to the government emphasize that such a step would be taken only as a last resort if the Cantonese after their probable defeat of Marshal Sun, insist on entering the city in full force.

Such triumph of a large Chinese army would precede an anti-foreigner outbreak which would make the activities of Hankow mobs pale into insignificance, it was claimed.

Advice of the experts on the defense of Shanghai is to the effect that it is impossible to defend the city once an invading army has entered it, due to its narrow, crooked streets. The mobs would be able to reach within a few yards of the foreign barricades before resistance would be possible and then could enter by sheer force of numbers, it is claimed. As the fall of the concession would be inevitable, establishment of a neutral zone outside the city may become vital, it is said.

Will Seek Agreement.

"We do not expect such an eventuality," it was reported by those in touch with the government. "First of all we are doing our utmost to reach an agreement with Foreign Minister Chen and secondly we do not intend to take part in the factional dispute. If the Cantonese gain Shanghai and promise to enter the city peacefully as have other conquerors we will respect their authority."

The laborite joint council has issued a message to Foreign Minister Chen, now in Hankow in conversation with British Charge d'Affaires, O'Connell, urging him to negotiate a settlement and to refrain from allowing any incidents which will give an excuse for use of "flamboyant military demonstrations."

"Please recognize the fact," said the message, "that British socialists are as strongly opposed to British imperialism in China as the Chinese are against themselves. We must use the common enemy no excuse to divide us in the holocaust of war."

SHANGHAI PREPARING FOR CHINESE ATTACK.

Shanghai, January 26.—(AP)—Apprehension was felt today that this chief commercial city of the Far East and home of many thousands of white foreigners would be attacked in the near future by the Cantonese invading troops.

A new wave of anti-foreigner agitation and violence is predicted to roll over the Yangtze river basin, from which hundreds of foreigners were ousted in recent weeks, notably in the cities of Hankow and Kiating, when their concessions were taken over by Cantonese after mob attacks.

The Cantonese or nationalist government troops are reported forming in heavy force in northern Chekiang province, approximately 100 miles from Shanghai. They intend, it is believed, to attempt to capture Shanghai before the main body of British troops arrive here late in February.

The British, 20,000 strong, of both the army and the navy, have been ordered to Shanghai from England and elsewhere, with ships of war in large numbers.

Scene of Next Clash.

Chekiang may be the scene of the next clash in the war between north and south China, for Marshal Sun Chuan-fang has ordered his troops concentrated to repel the advance of the Cantonese from Chekiang into Kiangsu province toward Shanghai. Marshal Sun, who lost two of his five provinces to the Cantonese horde rolling northward in his alliance with other northern leaders, plans determined resistance.

Troops of Punjab province of British India which are expected here today as the vanguard of the British forces may by their presence start the flame of resentment against foreign troops, particularly British, over central and south China, where the Cantonese are dominant and where propaganda against foreigners has been spread under Russian direction.

American warships safeguarded foreigners in Shanghai. Capable of landing 800 men, they are the largest foreign naval contingent at present protecting the "Potsdam" district.

There was more apprehension felt today for safety of foreigners in the interior and other coastal cities than those in Shanghai, at least for the present. Most of the American women and children already have left the Foochow district of Fukien province, and the remainder are preparing to withdraw.

Ten Chinese were executed for the mob violence in Foochow, after the Cantonese had arrested 300, charged with being implicated in it.

Small disorders continue in towns up the Yangtze river, but some encouragement was felt when British and American business men returned to their vocations in Hankow.

FUNERAL THURSDAY OF JAMES M. BROOM

Escaped Convicts May Stage Holdups, Posse Heads Say

SEARCH CENTERS AROUND TENNESSEE BORDER

Albert Rosenberg, left, and Basil Baughart, convicts who escaped from the United States penitentiary here on Tuesday, and late Wednesday night were still at liberty.

BY BEN COOPER.

Fear that Albert Rosenberg, suave, polished criminal of international fame who escaped with two other prisoners Tuesday night from the Atlanta federal penitentiary, will attempt to make good his boast that the United States government will pay him "one million dollars for each year in the pen." Wednesday gave impetus to the search for the mail thief and his companion, Basil Baughart.

Known as "The Duke" to inmates of the penitentiary because of his affable, courteous demeanor and haughty carriage, Rosenberg Wednesday was carried by Immigration Inspector Cockendall as one of the most desperate and resourceful criminals in the country, rivaling in nerve, daring and magnitude of operation even "Dutch" Anderson and Gerald Chapman, whose escape from the local penitentiary was a countrywide sensation.

Encouragement was given searchers by the capture of Fred McGoldrick, one of the trio, near the Old Soldiers' home. McGoldrick, a sprained ankle as the result of his jump from the prison wall to the sidewalk below, was found shivering under a clump of bushes, cold, damp and discouraged, offering no resistance to deputy wardens who arrested him.

While search for Rosenberg and Baughart, continued Wednesday in the vicinity of the prison and in the city was received from Cedarhurst that three men answering the description of the escaped convicts had passed through that city after an attempt to burglarize the Williams garage, at Felton.

Best Gas Bill.

Traveling in light sedan, the men asked for gasoline at Felton. While Mr. Williams, the proprietor, was getting some oil for them after filling the gas tank, the car was driven off at high speed, to the accompaniment of shots fired by officers who were near the garage at the time.

The men tried to run down Officer Parrish, who was in the middle of the street, but the policeman escaped by a quick jump to safety, avoiding the gas tank, the car was driven off at high speed, to the accompaniment of shots fired by officers who were near the garage at the time.

Cedarhurst advices were to the effect that the three men were probably Rosenberg, Baughart and a member of Rosenberg's gang who, according to theory, may have known of the escape and been waiting at a rendezvous.

Albert Rosenberg is known as one of the cleverest international mail thieves on record. Born in Lithuania, he first came to America in 1912. His first known crime was the robbery of $1,250,000 in bonds from the Steamship Minnehaha in mid-ocean, for which he was arrested and sentenced to two years in the Atlanta penitentiary. Two years from the time of his arrival at the penitentiary, he escaped.

His first known crime was the robbery of $1,250,000 in bonds from the Steamship Minnehaha in mid-ocean, for which he was arrested and sentenced to two years in the Atlanta penitentiary. Two years from the time of his arrival at the penitentiary, he escaped.

Escapes Officers.

Rosenberg escaped from Ellis Island by motorboat in November of 1925 while awaiting deportation. Federal officers next heard of him when he was seen in the streets of New York, Washington, and, with one accomplice, engineered the robbery of $137,000 from the mails on the steamer, Hays.

He was recaptured, and after being brought back to America he was convicted the second time and given a 10-year sentence in the Atlanta penitentiary, which sentence he was serving at the time of his escape Tuesday.

The old deportation warrant still holds good against Rosenberg, and will be served following completion of his sentence in the event he is recaptured. Though international mail robbery is his specialty, Rosenberg also deals in bigamy, according to government officers. He is charged with having married a woman in Germany, and when sent to Ellis Island, expressed fear that if he landed in England, the British authorities would turn him over to bigamy charges.

From the proceeds of his first mail robbery, Rosenberg purchased land in Germany for $25,000, buying in a friend's name because of a German statute against foreigners buying land in that country.

Rosenberg is an unique figure in crime, according to government officers. During deportation proceedings, he informed Inspector Cockendall that any one who stole less than $20,000 "is a piker," and the United States, he said, was "a crooked place."

He made the assertion that the government owes him a million dollars for every year he has served in prison. "Which I will collect," he told Inspector Cockendall.

A master of the English language, and an adept at speaking many other

in addition to his native tongue, Rosenberg is a dangerous man, officers said. He is well developed physically, and is in excellent health.

Six posers were searching Wednesday night for the escaped convicts. A justice official said that the pair will be recaptured soon. Department of justice machinery was in action, and every possible line of escape was being closely guarded. Lookout notices, with full descriptions, pictures and fingerprints, have been forwarded by officials to all parts of the country.

Escape of the trio was well planned, and would have succeeded for two other inmates except that they lost their nerve at the final moment, when Guard Van opened fire on the three prisoners already through the window. Joseph C. Lauzon, 20-year man, and Joe E. Harris, 50-year man, were recaptured by guards at the window through which the escape was made.

Believe None Hit.

Although Guard Van expressed belief that he had hit one of the escaping trio with his shotgun, prison officials were inclined to the opinion that Guard Van mistook McGoldrick's limp, due to a sprained ankle, for a hit.

McGoldrick, when captured, denied that he was "in" on the plot to escape, but explained that he happened along in that part of the corridor at the moment of escape and decided to take the chance also. Prison officials believe McGoldrick, and expressed belief that the escape plot was hatched by Rosenberg and Lauzon. McGoldrick, Lauzon and Eubayris are in solitary confinement.

The escape was timed to occur while more than 400 inmates of the house were attending night school and the attention of the cell house guard was occupied at the other end of the corridor.

DADDY BROWNING WILL TELL OF PEACHES

the same outfit that knocked 'em dead in Carmel and blocked traffic Tuesday in White Plains. She was a symphony in blue and gold—a trifle Wagnerian, perhaps, but effective.

Daddy fixed upon her those eyes like a benevolent eagle's, and settled back to listen and to dream, but he came out of it with a start.

One of the first things that developed was that "Peaches" had gone him one better in doing big things in a big way. She had kept two diaries. Somewhat apologetically, Attorney Epstein explained that the brighter diary "Peaches" identified yesterday was a deleted version. She had just told him last night, he said, that she had taken the names of her boyfriends out of it to protect them. He produced the real document, which "Peaches" said she had turned over to her mother on the night of her marriage.

Made Love to Her.

Mack alertly told us "Peaches" at that and made her admit through a deluge of tears that the deleted names were those of boys who made love to her during the far-off days when she was a $12-a-week department store clerk.

"Did the parts omitted in rewriting her references to these men?"

"Yes," sobbed "Peaches."

"Why did you revise the diary?"

"I was advised to by Mr. Joseph Morris when he realized the diary might become a sort of biography," Morris is the lad who introduced "Peaches" to Browning as Frances Heenan, for "Peaches" mother had testified that the name "Peaches" was a product of Daddy Browning's "Bunny" moments of inspiration.

Diaries Are Barred.

Mack urged including both diaries in the evidence—to demonstrate that the 15-year-old was "a woman of the world in spite of her years." But Justice Seeger ruled against it.

"They relate entirely to things prior to the marriage," he said, "so the entries cannot relate to any of the transactions involved here."

"Peaches" left the stand to embrace her mother after four hours and 40 minutes of exposing private life in the New York Cinderella and Wool-Wool colony.

Mrs. Catherine Mayer and the other witnesses didn't add much. The former was a sort of bridesmaid, "Peaches" during the honeymoon at Cold Springs, meantime dressing the acid burns. She heard Daddy and "Peaches" having a little honeymoon tiff, and she heard "Peaches" call her mother: "Oh, please take care of me."

Offered Publicity.

Marion Tussey, of New York, one of "Peaches" girl friends, told that only last Saturday Browning had offered her lots of publicity and expense money if she would do a little testimony for him. She gave "Peaches" a clean bill of health and glared at Browning, the cynical old man of the world.

Arthur Leduc, a handsome New York reporter, reaffirmed his answer to question Browning had once asked him in a between-men fashion. No, he'd never kissed "Peaches," and furthermore he'd never interviewed her in a bedroom alone and wouldn't have interviewed her in a bedroom at all except that she was sick. The bedroom interviews were fully gone into by "Peaches" herself, to the satisfaction of even Browning's counsel, as he frankly admitted.

Counsel for both sides agreed to save up going into Daddy's real estate portfolio, hefting and estimating it, until the separation suit is ended. It's said to be a tidy sum, but pretty well tied up.

Meet Again Monday.

And then Epstein was granted permission to call a physician next Monday to testify regarding "Peaches" physical condition, and otherwise rested his case. Mack had rested Browning's case at Carmel Monday, and all his rebuttal witnesses were subpoenaed for next Monday. So Monday it was made.

"Of course Browning will take the stand," Mack said.

"I just hope he does!" commented "Peaches," "but he's afraid to."

That shows how little a woman can learn about a man even by marrying him. Browning afraid, he faced 20 photographers on the courthouse steps, took his hat off and put it on, and received the cheers of the crowd without a tremor. The blue Rolls-Royce was nearly crushed and the footman got lost in the crowd and had to run to get on. As for "Peaches," she snaked out the side door as her custom and was nearly mobbed by the customary flappers who had out-guessed her.

DRASTIC CHANGES IN SCHOOLS URGED

the net budget for the year is $2,795,100.20. Indications as to the stand the advisory committee will take in operating the schools was given in the statement that "the expenditures are therefore limited to that amount."

Report Not Final.

Report of the committee cannot be considered final as its powers are limited to a supervision of the expenditures for school administration during the year. Harold Hirsch is chairman of the committee and other members are H. W. McCord, H. Warner Martin, W. T. Perkinson and W. W. Orr.

An executive session of the current expenditures of the board of education to consider the report of the advisory committee, will be held Monday.

night in the office of the chairman, W. D. Hoffman. Mr. Hoffman had not seen the report Wednesday night and could give no statement as to the suggestions.

Final decision of the two bodies as to the actual amount which will be spent by the schools cannot be made until a joint session is held. It is expected that Dr. R. M. Eubanks, president of the board of education, will call a special session of the board of education next week after the current expenditures committee has taken the report under advisement. Unless this is done no definite action will be made until the regular February meeting of the board of education.

Former Budget Plan.

The budget as previously prepared and recommended by the board of education and known as the "B" budget, included the following items: General control, $77,599.24; instructional service, $2,639,315.42; operation of plants, $209,098.15; maintenance of plants, $161,182. and fixed charges, $19,055. and items of debt service, capital outlay and auxiliary agencies, which were not mentioned in the committee report.

The outlined budget of the advisory committee includes the following items: General control, $50,000; instructional service, $2,345,000; operation of plants, $137,000, and fixed charges, $5,000.

The latter budget strikes approximately $300,000 for instructional service item, which directly affect teachers' salaries. And approximately $27,000 is struck from the general control item and $20,000 from operation of plants.

Text of Report.

After a survey of the financial condition of public instruction, and a study of the finances of the city of Atlanta, we, the committee appointed by a body of citizens, report:

We are informed that the present deficit of the school system will be financed by an extra appropriation.

We are informed that the net total school for the current expenses for the year 1927 is $2,795,100.20. The expenditures are therefore limited to that amount.

Steps be taken as soon as possible to eliminate free textbooks.

That a detailed and itemized budget be immediately prepared, and that it be strictly adhered to, and no extra funds be paid out of the appropriation that same be approved by the city controller, whose duty it shall be to see that funds are paid out in strict accordance with the itemized and detailed budget. That an audit of income and expenditures of the school finances for 1926 be prepared at this time by the auditor employed by the city and a copy thereof be presented to the contact, the board, and this committee.

That the payment of fees by the students be not abolished, and if the kindergarten by the payment of tuition, until the finances of the city warrant the reestablishment of same.

That salaries be not fixed until after the amount of the appropriation is determined, and that the present scale of salaries be abolished.

That funds appropriated for current expenses be not used for capital outlay.

That it is possible to materially reduce expenditures heretofore made by the board of education without reducing the present salaries of the teachers, and without affecting the fundamentals of the school system. No budget having been proposed, we make the following suggestions that expenditures be limited as follows:

General control, not exceeding... $ 50,000

Instructional service, not exceeding... 2,345,000

Operation of plant, not exceeding... 137,000

Maintenance plant, not exceeding... 19,055

Fixed charges, not exceeding... 5,000

We are convinced that there can be a consolidation of the present grammar schools, and where possible this should be done.

That the present method of elections to the board of education be continued, and the recommendations herein made.

POWER MERGER AGAIN UNDER FIRE

Presentation of their case to the Georgia public service commission will be made today by minority stockholders of Georgia Railway and Electric company, opposing consolidation of Georgia properties of the Southeastern Power company. Agreement not to insist on a supersedeas order, which would prevent the public service commission from beginning hearing on the proposed merger was reached Wednesday by counsel for minority holders.

Miss Lola McOrt Praises The Southern Business College For Its Wonderful Training

Success of Graduates Causing Many to Enroll for Training at The Southern.

Off to positions the students are continually going.

Successful students build a successful school.

The success of the graduates of the Southern Shortland and Business University has been the inducement that has carried thousands of young men and young women to this institution, from all parts of the country, to be trained for stenographic, secretarial and book-keeping positions, and now, more than ever before, young people feel that they can not afford to miss the opportunity of receiving their Business Education at the SOUTHERN.

Every Monday quite a number enroll for business courses, but next Monday, January 31, an unusually large number of new pupils are expected, judging from the applications already in hand.

To start during the next week or two means readiness for positions in the summer and early fall, the best time for securing employment.

Among the Southern's numberless pupils who have gone with important firms is Miss Lola McOrt, who has written to the school that she is delighted with her education, and also much pleased with her training received at the Southern. She now holds a splendid position with the Remington Typewriter Company, one of the country's largest concerns.

Those interested in a Business Education will find her letter, which follows below, interesting and inspiring.

Marietta, Ga., Jan. 24, 1927.

Southern Shortland and Business University, 56 Whitehall Street, Atlanta, Ga.

Gentlemen:

I am sure you will be interested to know that I am well pleased with the position secured by you for me with the Remington Typewriter Company, Atlanta, Ga.

I have been my pleasure to receive an increase in salary at the expiration of three months' service, which I feel sure I could not have gotten without your most wonderful training while a student at your splendid school.

Having entered your school, I took the secretarial course and am very much pleased with the results obtained therefrom.

had completed hearing on the case a supersedeas would be asked to prevent further steps toward consolidation until the Georgia supreme court gives a decision.

It is understood that arbitration of the question will be sought after the hearing is completed. The public service commission was scheduled to have begun hearing on the proposed merger at 10 o'clock Tuesday morning, but postponed action, pending the injunction action which was brought before Judge Pomeroy.

The demurrer introduced by W. E. Watkins, special attorney for the public service commission, was sustained by Judge Pomeroy. The general demurrer opposed any opposition with the right of the commission to hear the merger plea.

Plaintiffs in the action represented 4,400 shares of stock in the Georgia Railway and Electric company, which is included in the proposed merger. They contend that they are being deprived of valuable property and attack constitutionality of the legislative act of 1923, under which the merger is contemplated. Companies involved in the proposed merger are the Georgia

Railway and Power company, the Georgia Railway and Electric company, the Home Railway and Light company, the Athens Railway and Electric company and the East Georgia Power company.

Minority stockholders are represented in the litigation by Attorneys Reuben Arnold, Lowry Arnold, King, Caldwell and Partridge; Alfred C. Brown, Atlanta, and Hewlett Hall, of Newnan.

SECOND MANLEY TRIAL INDEFINITELY DELAYED

Hearing on a second felony indictment against W. D. Manley, former president of the Bankers' Trust company, whose insolvency is said to have caused the failure of more than 80 banks in Georgia and Florida last summer, was indefinitely postponed Wednesday in Fulton superior court, when John A. Boykin, solicitor general, presented a report from Dr. Thomas H. Hancock stating that the banker is suffering from a general breakdown, and agreed to the postponement.

Mr. Manley was convicted and sentenced to nine to ten years last fall on a charge of criminal insanity, and is under several additional indictments alleging illegal management of the banks with which he was connected. The postponed hearing, which was called Wednesday, charged him with allowing the Bankers' Trust company to accept deposits while knowing it to be insolvent.

Solicitor Boykin stated that it was not known at what future date the trial might be assigned. The banker is also scheduled to face a federal court jury next Monday.

Trial of Paul J. Baker, L. R. Adams, John D. Russell and J. A. Sasser, other executives of the Bankers' Trust company, jointly indicted with the bank president in a number of cases, has not been set. However, the solicitor stated Wednesday, there is a probability that they will face the court within the next few weeks.

Police Holding Seven Youths As 'Auto Ring'

Following their arrest in a stolen automobile Sunday night, three youths, Lamar Norton, 301 Rawson street; H. E. Evans, 1022 Ridge avenue, and Harold Hammock, 928 Fort street, all under 22 years old, are said to have confessed to wholesale theft of automobiles and gave information that led to the recovery of five additional stolen automobiles. Arrest of four other youths occurred later.

The three youths were apprehended by Motorcycle Patrolman Tuggle in an automobile stolen from W. D. Farley, Ansley hotel. They were wearing hubbards which they confessed to have stolen from 111 Peachtree street, it is said.

After the alleged confession Detective Jack Malcolm and John W. Lowe located several automobiles and arrested Grover Whidby, 1420 Gordon street; S. L. Mayfield, 254 Central place; Lamar Lloyd, 382 Grand street, and Arthur Brown, 319 Capitol avenue.

The seven youths are being held at police station and suspicion, and probably go before the Fulton grand jury Friday afternoon.

JERSEY CITY MAN IS SOUGHT HERE BY HIS NEPHEW

Albert Steinberg, who left Jersey City four months ago to come to Atlanta, is being sought by his 13-year-old nephew, Charles Steinberg, of Brooklyn, N. Y. The youth was moved by his dying grandmother's request to see Mr. Steinberg before she passed to the great beyond.

"My grandmother, Mrs. Mary Gorman, whose address is box 66, Port Monmouth, N. J., fell ill two weeks ago and is not expected to recover," the New York schoolboy stated in a letter asking The Constitution to aid in finding his uncle.

"Since her illness grandmother has asked my father if he has heard from Uncle Albert. She is longing to hear from him and we want to do everything we can for her sake."

It appears from the letter that Mr. Steinberg set out for Atlanta four months ago and has not been heard from since. Any effort to locate him by mail is unavailing because of the uncertainty of his whereabouts. The child requests that any one who is able to supply information concerning Albert Steinberg communicate with him at 350 Court street, Brooklyn.

CLIFFORD TOMMEY, 16-YEAR-OLD BOY, REPORTED MISSING

Clifford Tommey, 16-year-old son of A. C. Tommey, city circulation manager of The Constitution, of 878 York avenue, has been missing since Tuesday afternoon, according to members of his family.

He was last seen at Gordon and Lee streets, in West End, about 2 o'clock, when he left his bicycle at a bicycle shop on Lee street. He did not have very much money with him, it was reported.

Young Tommey has been employed at Provo's Pharmacy in West End for about a week. He left the pharmacy about 1 o'clock Tuesday, it was stated.

The boy is described as being about 5 feet 6 inches tall, weighs 135 pounds and wears a dark blue suit, a checkered sweater and a light gray cap. He has chestnut brown hair and brown eyes.

ANTI-EVOLUTION BILL INTRODUCED IN RALEIGH, N. C.

Raleigh, N. C., January 26.—(AP)—The North Carolina legislature today received a bill calling for fine or imprisonment for any teacher in a state-supported or aided school who teaches "any doctrine or theory of evolution which contradicts or denies the divine origin of man or of the universe as taught in the holy Bible."

The bill was introduced by Representative Poole for the North Carolina Bible society. Mr. Poole fathered a similar bill two years ago which was defeated.

MR. SPOKESMAN IS MR. PRESIDENT, ASSERTS SENATOR

Washington, January 26.—President Coolidge is the white house spokesman, Senator James A. Reed, Missouri democrat, declared in the senate today.

"Let us be done with sham and pretense," he said. "The president's spokesman is the president himself, and the newspapers are under coercion and compulsion to keep up the fiction of the spokesman, in order to create the impression that the president himself does not say the things he says."

Election Dispute Wrecks Amity Of Miners' Meet

Indianapolis, January 26.—(AP)—Demands for a publication of local union returns from the 1924 election of international officers at today's session of the United Mine Workers' convention brought John L. Lewis, president, to his feet in a denunciation of John Brophy, his rival in the recent election.

The charge made by John Brophy's political camp that the election of two years ago was stolen, a brand as an infamous lie, Lewis denied. "We will send out tabulated local election returns this year because if we don't John Brophy and his slimy friends will say we stole it."

Earlier in the day the Lewis and Brophy factions clashed over the determination of a policy to carry on organization work in non-union bituminous fields. Brophy charged the Lewis administration failed in settling the 1922 soft coal strike and declared his policies were weakening the union.

The Lewis conservative policies won every issue in a day of debate on resolutions.

A. B. BALLARD DIES AT FLOVILLA HOME

News of the death Sunday of Alexander B. Ballard, of Tampa, Fla., was received by friends in Atlanta Wednesday. Mr. Ballard formerly resided in Atlanta and was well known here. He had been in ill health for a number of years.

Mr. Ballard's mother, Mrs. Josephine W. Ballard, was head of the Atlanta seminary home for many years. After her death the institution was converted into a hotel, known as the Ballard house. Mr. Ballard was a member of the Yacht club.

He is survived by his wife and three sons, Blair, Jr., Maurice and Lee Ballard, and a daughter, Mrs. Frank E. Davis, of Atlanta.

LIQUOR CHARGE HOLDS WOMAN TO GRAND JURY

Charged with possession of 43 gallons of whisky, Della Phillips, of 107 Griffin street, Wednesday was held by United States Commissioner L. S. Ledbetter for the grand jury under $300 bond. The woman claimed that three men promised her $15 for storing the liquor for them, in her story in commissioner's court, contradicting her first statement to prohibition agents that the whisky belonged to her, it was said.

The Newest and Best Treatment For Bad Colds

Discovery of Distinguished Chemist Said to Be Greatest Medical Find of the Age.

Recent scientific research discloses the fact that poison bile in the system is merely a contributory cause to bad colds, and that the "bad cold germ" propagates only when the system is acid.

Two things then, are now considered necessary for bad cold relief—thoroughly cleanse the liver, stomach and bowels, and alkalize the system, which can now be done for the first time with one preparation, "Alertox," the discovery of a Southern Chemist.

Alertox is a liquid saline solution of well known mineral salts, dominated by sulphate of magnesium, which causes a physical (natural) evacuation of the entire intestinal tract, at the same time neutralizing the acidity of the system. Strong purgatives that goad the liver merely cause a "chemical" evacuation and should be avoided, as they leave the system in a weakened condition. Using the Alertox treatment, the system is fortified and colds rarely ever hang on more than 24 hours, and often disappear in half that time.

Alertox is pleasant to take, non-irritating, non-absorbent and will not sicken or nauseate. 25c and 60c sizes at any drug store. If your druggist cannot supply Alertox, it will be sent direct upon receipt of price. Crystal Carbonic Laboratory, Desk 3, Atlanta, Georgia.—(adv.)

POLICE TO ATTEND FUNERAL SERVICE FOR C.B. SATURDAY

With the Atlanta police department in escort, funeral services for Cleveland B. Saturday, 37 years old, former police officer, of 280 Jones avenue, who died Tuesday afternoon in a private sanitarium, will be held today at 2:30 o'clock from the Western Heights Baptist church. Rev. W. M. Albert will officiate and interment will be in Crest Lawn cemetery.

Mr. Saturday is survived by his wife; two sons, Billy and C. B. Jr.; his mother, Mrs. J. W. Smith, of Savannah; two sisters, Mrs. Wiley Walters, of Oak Park, and four half-brothers, Roger, Eli and S. S. Smith, of Atlanta, and W. L. Smith, of Philadelphia, Pa.

POLICE BAND SHOW PLANNED IN MARCH

The second annual police band show will be held at the city auditorium March 16, it was announced by A. W. Jones, city smoke inspector and chairman of the entertainment committee.

The 1927 entertainment is said to be planned on a greater scale than the show held at the Auditorium last year, which drew about 6,000 Atlantans.

Several large acts are slated for the March performance, including circus clowns and other features, together with out-of-town police bands and a police hike band.

The committee on arrangements is composed of A. W. Jones, J. C. Scharf, director of the band; J. C. Mosley, F. M. Bell, H. L. Turner, M. B. Johnson, Jack Malcolm and L. J. Carroll.

FLEEING LIQUOR CAR HALTED AFTER CHASE

R. D. McDuffie, 34, of Merritts avenue, was captured by DeKalb county police late Wednesday night with 30 gallons of whisky near Conley, Ga.

GIVEN UP AS DEAD AFTER LONG FALL, LINEMAN ON JOB

Given up as dead by his companions, who four months ago saw him fall from a 45-foot pole to a brick sidewalk, G. C. Thompson, veteran Georgia Railway and Power company lineman, is back on the job of climbing poles.

Bringing into practice first-aid treatment learned in company classes, Thompson's coworkers toiled over his apparently lifeless body, and continued the treatment after the hospital ambulance had picked him up.

Despite broken vertebrae, pelvis, wrist and hip, together with cuts and bruises, Thompson won a four-months battle and is now back in harness again.

RUMRUNNER FLEES BUT LOSES CARGO

Pursued by County Policemen Cook and Neal for several miles through the north side residential section, late Tuesday night, an unidentified blockade runner leaped from his whisky-laden automobile when it crashed into a telephone pole on State street.

In the wrecked machine was found 40 gallons of liquor which was confiscated. The driver of the car escaped. The car was "jumped" by the county officers just beyond the city limits on the north side and the chase followed south on Peachtree street to Brookwood and thence to State street.

He led the police over a rough road for about three miles and would have escaped but for the good aim of one of the officers who punctured a rear tire of the fleeing car.

Officers L. S. Henderson and M. H. Phillips made the arrest. He was carried to the DeKalb county jail where he made a bond of $750.

NEGRO MASONS ERECT GIRLS' DORMITORY

Americus, Ga., January 26.—(Special.)—Approximately $11,000 is being expended by Georgia negro Masons in the erection of a new girls' dormitory at the Georgia Negro Masonic orphanage in Americus. The building is being erected under auspices of the negro Order of Eastern Star.

A new boys' dormitory, which cost $40,000, was recently completed at the orphanage.

Popular Macon Woman Recovers From Long Illness

Serious Troubles Caused by Nervousness, Dizziness, Loss of Sleep and Stomach Disorders Relieved, Strength Restored. Says Tanlac Deserves All Praise

Thousands of men and women suffering from extreme nervousness, run-down condition and troubles caused by a weak stomach and clogged system may discover the surest way to get quick relief in the experience of Mrs. Geo. E. Smith, 215 Washington Avenue, Macon, Ga., whose recovery from a long illness surprised everyone.

"Deadly pains in my head, dizziness and loss of appetite made life unbearable," says Mrs. Smith. "My digestive organs were in such bad shape that I had to be careful of what I ate. And even then I always suffered from gas that bloated my stomach. Nervousness made sleep impossible. I would only toss and turn, waiting for dawn."

"Tanic quickly made a new woman of me. I am now so much stronger, I sleep so much better. And the more fact that I can eat everything without suffering makes life more livable. I get more pleasure out of each day. That is what Tanlac has done for me. I owe it a debt of gratitude."

Mrs. Smith has derived inestimable benefits from this wonderful tonic, made from roots, barks and herbs.

Tanic does relieve pain. It puts solid flesh on weak, scrawny bodies, energy into systems that are tired and worn out. It helps cleanse the system of poisons, tones up the liver, relieves constipation. Take Tanlac for better health and better strength. The first bottle shows wonderful results. At all druggists. More than 40 million bottles sold.—(adv.)

FARMERS' CREED GIVEN BY SOULE

Athens, Ga., January 26.—(Special.)—An appeal to farmers and business men of Georgia to "make cotton our main money crop without injury to our economic welfare and to enrich and supply the wants of the world with our surplus crops" was made here today by Dr. Andrew M. Soule, announcing his 1927 "agricultural creed" for this state at the twentieth annual farmers' conference. Dr. Soule's creed follows:

"Let us develop Georgia from the mountains to the sea.
"Recover her waste hillside with the useful verdure of the forest.
"Drain out her bottom lands and make them pay tribute to Kings Grain and Grass.
"Enrich our soils by the uniform growth of legumes thereon.
"Develop animal industries commensurate with our needs.
"Diversify our cropping program and make our farmers self-contained and self-sustaining.
"Stabilize cotton production and make it our main money crop without injury to our economic welfare.
"Enrich and supply the wants of the world with our surplus crops and make the nations pay tribute to the genius of our people."
J. E. Conwell, president and manager of the Georgia Cotton Growers' Cooperative association, told the conference that production was only one-fourth of the farm problem today. Proper packing, distribution and marketing constituted three-fourths of the farmers' worry, he said.
"The farmer must either organize the marketing of his products or he must quit farming," he declared. "With the greatest crops in the history of the state the Georgia farmer today is faced with financial ruin, all because he has no organized marketing system.

"A way back years ago the system under which we were marketing our cotton was established, when there was no organization. At that time there was no Southwestern Cotton Buyers association. There was no labor organization. There was no organization of industries. The railroad was not organized. It is different today, and the only way the producers of farm products can hope to compete with the other business concerns is through an organization of their own."
No type of education has developed so rapidly as the cooperative extension work in agriculture and home economics. A recent addition to the educational system of the United States, C. W. Warburton, director of extension work in the department of agriculture, said in his address before the School of Cooperative Marketing today.

Supplementary Education.
A. V. Swarthout, of the United States department of agriculture, spoke on the price factors which cooperatives must consider. He declared that the cooperative associations must remember that price fixing is not within the power of such organizations, but must be governed by the law of supply and demand. He said that it was highly important that shipments to any market did not exceed the consuming power of that market at any time and that such shipment be so regulated that the market be supplied at all times during the year.
Others on the program today included A. W. McKay, expert bureau of economics at Washington; W. A. Shivers, of the Georgia Cotton Growers' Cooperative; and H. M. McCall, of the Moultrie Packing company.
In discussing cooperative marketing associations, Mr. McKay said: "Cooperative marketing agencies and business agencies first. This should be realized by all concerned. After making a success of the business of marketing the commodity, then their members, social and service benefits should certainly be derived by the members."
Mr. McDowell praised the ton litter contest and the stimulating work of the college in promoting hog production in Georgia. After reviewing the rise and decline of hog production in the state in recent years, he spoke of the need for more ton litters.
Tomorrow's conference will feature addresses by Aaron Sapir, of California, cooperative marketing expert; James A. Holman, of the United States Constitution; J. W. Flier, state marketing specialist.
The woman's division of the conference begins tomorrow also. Mrs. L. McCall, of Hartwell, is chairman of the state home economics council, which will meet during the conference.

KELLOGG OUTLINES STAND ON CHINA
put up with another for control in China. The government of the United States expects, however, that the people of China and their leaders will recognize the right of American citizens to reside in China and to protect their property during the period of conflict for which they are not responsible.
"In the event that the Chinese authorities are unable to afford such protection, it is, of course, the fundamental duty of the United States to protect the lives and property of its citizens. It is with the possible necessity for this in view that American naval forces are now in Chinese waters to protect our citizens and deal with China in a most liberal spirit. It holds no concessions in China and has never manifested any imperialistic attitude toward that country. It desires, however, that its citizens be given equal opportunity with the citizens of the other powers to reside in China and to pursue their legitimate occupations without special privileges, monopolies, or spheres of special interest or influence."

Different Interests.
In the last sentence the reference to concessions indicates the difference between the interest of the United States in China and the interest of Great Britain and other powers having territorial and industrial concessions in China.
The conditions on which the administration is willing to negotiate the placement of unequal treaties are stated as follows:
"The United States has always desired the unity, the independence and prosperity of the Chinese nation. It has desired that the powers should treat with China as equals and that extraterritoriality provided by our treaties with China should be as early as possible released. It was with that in view that the United States made the declaration in relation to the relinquishment of extraterritoriality in the treaty of 1903 and has entered into the treaty of Washington of February 6, 1922, providing for the release of such rights."

"The United States is now and has been, ever since the negotiations of the Washington treaty, prepared to enter into negotiations with any government of China or delegates who can represent or speak for China not only for the putting into force of the surtaxes of the Washington treaty but for releasing tariff control and restoring complete tariff autonomy to China."
"The United States has always expected, however, that it be granted most favored nation treatment and that there should be no discrimination against the United States and its citizens in trade in China and that the open door with equal opportunity for trade in China should be maintained; and further that China should afford every protection to American citizens, their property and rights."
Before the senate discussion of the extraterritoriality commission which can be put into force without treaty at once and to negotiate the release of extraterritorial rights as soon as China is prepared to provide protection by law and through her courts to American citizens, the rights and property."

Great Britain has declared in favor of these measures in aid of China but proposes that the powers shall negotiate jointly with China. Japan and Belgium are reported to be negotiating individually and now the United States announces its readiness to adopt that course.
Negotiations Outlined.
Mr. Kellogg recounts the history of the treaty at once and to negotiate the release of extraterritorial rights as soon as China is prepared to provide protection by law and through her courts to American citizens, the rights and property."

SPECIAL HEARING CLOSES MONDAY

Washington, January 26.—(P)—In hope of reporting a bill for lease of Muscle Shoals to the house for possible action before adjournment, the military committee voted today to close its hearings on the two bids before it next Monday. The decision, reached in executive session, followed earlier announcement by Chairman Smith and the rules committee, that any bill receiving favorable committee action would be given preferred legislative status in the house.

The committee will wind up at noon tomorrow its hearings on the offer of the Farmers' Federated Fertilizer corporation and will devote the remainder of the week and two sessions next Monday to discussion of the bid of the American Cyanamid Company of New York.
Numerous snags, one of them the recurring demand for governmental operation of Muscle Shoals, were encountered in the discussion of the Farmers' Federated Fertilizer corporation's bid in today's hearing. The financial structure of the corporation and provisions of the proposed federal charter it would receive which would govern power development on the Tennessee river above the shoals, also were discussed by members of the committee.

BAPTIST DAILY PAPER IS URGED IN SOUTH

New Orleans, January 26.—(P)—One or more great Baptist daily newspapers strategically located in the south were visualized here tonight by L. L. Gwaltney, of Birmingham, editor of the Alabama Baptist, in an address before the Southern Baptist Educational association.
Discussing the Baptist press of today, Mr. Gwaltney said the "paper of the people" should be a daily paper, printed in the morning, and should be a paper that would be a very aggressive fighter in cases involving moral issues. In a day of rapid communication, he said, the paper should be a paper that would be a very aggressive fighter in cases involving moral issues. German Coalition Ministry Plans Are Near Success

Berlin, January 26.—(P)—Chancellor Marx has succeeded in bringing the parties together for a coalition ministry, although as yet the ministers have not been named. The coalition of the people's party, the Bavarian people's party and the nationalists have agreed to participate in the ministry. The coalition also has been an accord relative to the government's policy.
The nationalists, in accepting the chancellor's outlined program, have agreed first, to conscientiously support the policy of the presidential decree forbidding enlistment in the reichswehr of recruits on probation or temporary release from military service; second, to interdict members of the army joining or cooperating with political organizations of any kind; third, to resist any attempt to enroll in the reichswehr of anti-republicans.
The nationalists also promised local cooperation in the League of Nations.

For a tariff conference to be held within three months after the coming into force of the treaty.

One-Day Reign of O'Keefe Junior Students Filled With Perplexing Everyday Problems

Teachers displaced for entire day by student body officers.

Teachers were displaced and all duties of school management were taken over by officers of the student governing body of O'Keefe Junior High school Wednesday. It was students' day, which means that every function of running the big school was turned over entirely to students for a day, and run it they did, thoroughly, completely, and efficiently.
From 8:30 o'clock to 2 o'clock the administration office hummed with routine activity of the day, classes met and lessons were heard and regular schedule was maintained in every department and not a teacher or an official was in authority and seldom was one seen.
In the office of the principal, Pollard Turman, president of the student body, reviewed and passed upon matters of discipline and dispatched details of management with equanimity and decision. He was aided by his cabinet members, who hurried in and out with reports, requests and suggestions from various department heads, who also were student officers.
Mary Seymour Ward, vice president, and Seymour Ward, secretary of the day, and it was she who bore the brunt of endless questions and requests brought to the office for solution from all classes. A turn of her pen and this order became effective. A nod of her head and some special permission became official.
Reform, order and competence prevailing among the student officers, they take up the management again today, they will find not a frayed end, nor a tangled problem left over for them to handle.
Student leaders occupied the following offices:

WHEELER URGES NICARAGUA VOTE

Washington, January 26.—(P)—American activities in Nicaragua were debated briefly again today in the senate. Senator Wheeler, of Montana, challenging the senate to take a stand for or against the administration's policy.
The challenge passed without formal action. The senate then turned to consideration of the pending deficiency bill after a running fire of discussion in which several senators on the republican side had defended the administration's program as the only one that could have been pursued.
American marines came in for attack. Senator Wheeler, republican, Utah, praising them and Senator King, democrat, Utah, interrupting to ask what he thought of the fact that from a dozen to 20 marines had been sent back from Nicaragua for imprisonment in this country after conviction by court-martial on charges of murder.
He explained that he was referring to the previous American expeditionary force to Nicaragua withdrawn in 1925. The senator declared the republicans had been revised by the republicans. When Deputy Horton approached, it was declared, Stanley deliberately shot him. Stanley was killed.
Bartow, Fla., January 26.—(P)—J. R. Worshum, 28, formerly of Camilla, Ga., was instantly killed yesterday afternoon when he stepped in a pool of water while using an electric drill at a local blacksmith shop.
A wife and two children survive.
Hiccough Epidemic.
Gadsden, Ala., January 26.—(Special.)—An epidemic of hiccoughs has prevailed in Gadsden during the last few days. Several people suffering from aggravated hiccoughs have been received at the hospital for treatment and many others are known to have been treated elsewhere.

Coroner's Jury Finds Woman Was Slain

Cape May, N. J., January 26.—(P) Miss Mary S. Clark, well-to-do Pittsburgh spinster, whose body was found on the beach here 10 days ago, was murdered, in the opinion of the coroner's jury.
At the conclusion of the inquest, the jury tonight returned a verdict asserting that Miss Clark had met her death by "strangulation by being forcibly held face down on the beach by person or persons unknown."

opened fire, killing him instantly. B. M. Milner, another deputy, then fired a shot at Stanley, killing him before he could fire more shots.
The officers, it was asserted, had been informed that Stanley was the illicit liquor business, and while they had carefully concealed their plans for a raid, Stanley found out from some unknown source.
Two of the wounded men, neither of whom is believed in critical condition, were in line with the first burst of Stanley's guns. Several men, seen in Stanley's tent by the officers, escaped during the battle.
In some manner Stanley stabbed Lewis with a knife before he was shot down, it was asserted. Lewis is not in a critical condition, either, it was reported.
The officers also carried, besides the regular search warrants, a warrant for the arrest of Mrs. Stanley, brought by Lewis on a charge of disturbing the peace.

How Doctors Treat Colds and the Flu

To break up a cold overnight or cut short an attack of gripe, influenza, sore throat or tonsillitis, physicians and druggists are now recommending Calabats, the purified and refined calomel compound tablet that gives you the effects of calomel and salts combined, without the unpleasant effects of either.
One or two Calabats at bed time with a swallow of water—that's all. No salt, no nausea nor the slightest interference with your eating, work or pleasure. Next morning your cold has vanished, your system is thoroughly purified and you are feeling fine with a hearty appetite for breakfast. Eat what you please—no danger.

FOUR WOMEN WIN CARNEGIE AWARDS

Pittsburgh, January 26.—(P)—Twenty-eight acts of heroism, including four by young women, were recognized by the Carnegie hero fund commission at the 23rd annual meeting here late today.
In the commission of heroic deeds, 10 of these cited lost lives, including a girl and two young brothers.
The commission awarded silver medals in three cases, and bronze medals in the others, in addition to $6,600 to the dependents of those who sacrificed their lives. In eight cases, awards totaling $12,800 were made, and in 10 others, the awards aggregated $8,500. The money is earned by the commission, to be applied as sanctioned for many purposes, including education.
The young girl who gave her life was Louise A. Corrigat, of 812 First street, Modesto, Calif. Lelaine, who was 15, died in an attempt to rescue a girl from drowning at Modesto on May 30, 1926. Her grandmother will receive a bronze medal.
Charles W. Butcher, of 1345 East Oak street, Stockton, Calif., a plumber's helper, was drowned when he attempted to assist Miss Corrigat. His widow receives a bronze medal, with $70 a month pension and $5 additional monthly for each of two children.
The two brothers died while attempting to save a girl from drowning in Lake Francis, Dobbins, Calif. They were Keith L. Torrey and Kenneth N. Torrey, both in their teens. Their heroic act took place on July 4, 1924. Keith was first to the rescue. When the task appeared fruitless, he summoned Kenneth, who plunged into the water fully clothed. Grant L. Torrey, of Dobbins, father of the boys, then went to the rescue. He succeeded in saving the girl, but both of his sons were drowned. The father received two posthumous awards—bronze medals commemorating the deed of the boys.

Heroes Lost Lives.
Other heroes who lost their lives were:
Lloyd A. T. Anderson, 2119 Alameda avenue, Alameda, Calif., young student, drowned when he attempted to save a man from drowning at Alameda on July 1, 1923. Bronze medal to the father, Michael J. Anderson, Alameda. Arminio Marchetti, 413 East Main street, Susquehanna, Pa., 14-year-old school boy, drowned at Oakland, Pa., February 3, 1924 when he tried to save a companion from the Susquehanna river. Bronze medal to his mother, Marie Marchetti, Susquehanna.
Michael J. Delchant, 17-12 Water street, Auburn, N. Y., died trying to rescue a girl from drowning at Raquette Lake, N. Y., July 7, 1926. Bronze medal to father, Thomas Delchant, Auburn.
George A. Brannard, Sr., 5815 Sherman street, Houston, Texas, suffocated when he tried to rescue a young man from a gas-filled sewer at Houston, June 13, 1923. Bronze medal to his widow with a pension of $70 a month and $5 monthly for each of two children.

Creating a New Business District

FROM the lofty perch to which the steel workers so faithfully carried the chattering machinery and put the final rivet into the top-most beam of this magnificent building, you would obtain a wonderful view of Atlanta's New Retail business district.

Those who have lived in Atlanta have long observed the trend northward. Even visitors have recognized the movement of Atlanta in this direction.

Today, or rather tomorrow, the center of retail business activity in Atlanta will be located at Peachtree and Ellis Streets, for it is there that the South's leading Department Store is rapidly nearing completion. It is in this location that most of the important new building during the past few years has taken place.

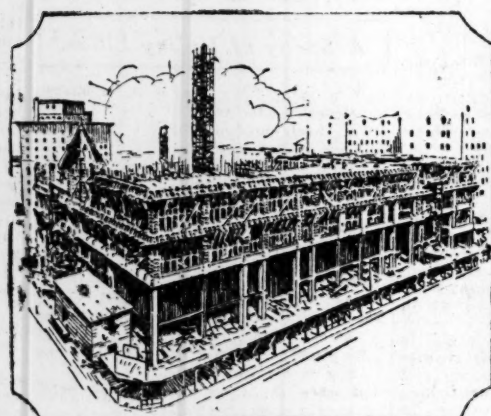

When R. H. Macy & Co., Inc., of New York, became affiliated with Davison-Paxon-Stokes Company, of Atlanta, the tremendous resources of the leading retail institutions of the North and South formed an association of such extraordinary power and strength that the mammoth store now being erected is the logical result.

The corner at Peachtree and Ellis Streets was chosen for the location because it is the natural retail business district. On the crest of a ridge of granite which runs through Atlanta from Stone Mountain, on one of the highest points in the city, this new store will be surrounded by the leading hotels, theatres, clubs, office buildings and stores. It is accessible by every mode of conveyance, convenient to the shopper, a perfect setting for a department store of such proportions and magnificence as this one.

In just a few weeks, the doors of this splendid Temple of Commerce will be opened to the public. Then you will behold the most impressive proportions and vast assortments of merchandise combined with the necessary facilities to aid a trained force of employees to give the best service it is possible to give.

Truly this will be the last word in equipment and organization for the scientific distribution of merchandise in the most economical way.

View of building while under construction. Floors and columns of reinforced concrete. Hundreds of tons of steel were required. Picture was made while concrete was being poured on third floor.

Beginning of excavation work at corner of Peachtree and Ellis Streets. The foundation was laid on solid rock which underlies the entire city of Atlanta.

PROPOSED NEW CHARTER.

The proposed new city charter, as explained to members of the President's club at a Baltimore dinner Tuesday evening by Attorney Marvin Underwood, has traveled further than any other charter revision proposal heretofore made. It will be voted upon very probably in the near future. The required number of petitioners, it is said, have been acquired to make it mandatory upon council to either accept it for recommendation to the state assembly in June, or to order a city-wide referendum, the result of the latter to decide its fate before the assembly.

It must be understood that any charter revision can only be made by the legislature, but as "a local measure" the legislature, by time-honored precedent, will be guided by the will of the local representation, and the latter in turn will be guided—although not mandatorily—by the will of the voters as expressed in referendum.

The proposed charter is undoubtedly an improvement upon the present antiquated charter which was framed in 1874, when Atlanta was but a village as compared to the great thriving city of commerce and industry of today.

It proposes elimination of the unwieldiness of the existing committee government—the conflicts, overlapping, bureaucracy tendencies, petty political differences, and other conditions that throttle, obstruct, dwarf and impair efficiency.

If it should be enacted by the 1927 assembly it would not go into effect until January, 1929—therefore it would not legislate anyone out of office or position.

There are some features of the proposed charter, which was first drawn in 1925 and subsequently revised by representative citizen groups, that need further revision. This can be accomplished through the legislative committee, or prior to its presentation to that body, if it is accepted by the voters in substance.

In general it provides for a council-manager form of government, which is entirely different—and must be so understood—from a commission form of government. It merely applies the business methods of great business organizations to government, concentrates responsibility, eliminates contradictory functions, and, as nearly as humanly possible, eliminates petty politics.

Something must be done—that is obvious. With only 10 per cent of the eligible vote of Atlanta taking enough interest in city affairs to go to the polls, it is necessary to eliminate the present menace of minority and bloc rule in Atlanta. This proposal is a forward step in that direction.

In proposing charter changes no reflection is made or should be made upon the personnel of the present or past city governments. It is the system only that is under fire—and justly so.

COLONEL SAM B. SWILLING.

The news of the death, at his home in Atlanta, of Colonel Sam B. Swilling, carries deep sorrow into a great number of Georgia homes. While not unexpected, as he had been ill for several weeks, his hosts of friends are shocked and saddened.

Prominent in his profession as a lawyer, with an enviable legislative record behind him, as a former representative from Franklin county, he had perhaps performed his greatest service during the past five years as attorney for the Georgia Cotton Cooperative association, to the principles of which—and to the principles generally of cooperative marketing—he was devoted.

He was active in church work, a devoted husband and father, and a useful citizen whose good works and helpful activities will be sorely missed.

ATLANTA SCHOOL OPERATIONS.

Revolutionary changes in Atlanta's school administration, suggested Wednesday to the mayor and council by the citizens' advisory committee—the receivers for the school board named recently in the funding agreement by which a half million dollar emergency fund to keep the schools open was raised—will be generally acceptable to the parents and citizens of this city.

The schools, their thoroughness, efficiency and expansions to meet growing demands, strike at the very heartstones of almost every home—

No service branch of government is of greater appeal, nor is there one that demands so forcibly a complete divorce from politics and from the sinister influences of cabals and factions.

That there must be changes—and drastic changes—is apparent to everyone. Should there be a complete revision of Atlanta's charter, which is as inevitable sooner or later as the revolution of the globe—it will be two years at best before the new charter can become effective—

School changes are imperative now.

The rigid recommendation as to the budgeting of anticipated expenditures and the restrictions of disbursements to the budget is unchangeable.

If business methods are not applied to school operation there will always be the same distressing and morale-destroying embarrassments that we have but recently encountered, and are not yet through with.

The consolidations recommended are wise. There is at present entirely too much overlapping and contradiction in the Atlanta system.

The abolition of the present plan of naming representation on the school board would be a far step in the direction of progress—certainly until the voters of Atlanta wake up to their civic duties and go to the polls and do their duties as stockholders in a great municipality.

School teachers, on the whole, are not paid too much provided they demonstrate the mental, temperamental and moral efficiency to occupy such positions of responsibility.

There is no greater responsibility than the training of the men and women of the morrow.

Economies, by the application of business, the elimination of board politics and petty factionalism, and the proper coordination of school services, can be so made that salaries may not be interfered with.

But only teachers capable by every standard test to command such salaries should be employed. When below such standards they are overpaid at any price.

The recommendations are vitally important. Some minor modifications might be made to advantage.

But the people of Atlanta—whose patience has been sorely tried—are ready for constructive changes, however drastic they may be.

Some of those who believe they are being called as candidates for a presidential nomination don't really know what they are being called.

Wayne Wheeler still believes it is a great sport to see how many fools will drink whisky made from poisoned denatured alcohol.

A Georgia house was broken into and nothing taken but a radio. All the neighbors are under suspicion.

Evidently, from the sporting page, all the football players have not been put in plaster casts for the season.

At Kansas City a paroled prisoner ran true to form and took a $70,000 pay roll from a bank messenger.

BITS OF NEW YORK LIFE

BY JOSEPH VAN RAALTE

New York January 26.—When the theatrical producers promised Mayor Walker they would "clean up" it may be they were using the term in its broader Broadway significance.

Instead of sprinkling chloride of lime on the heap, another dead cat has been hauled into the alley.

The latest offering deals with a variation of the bird in the gilded cage—the bird in this instance being a youth who falls victim to the golden lure of an elderly matron, proving, as reviewer points out, that it's the man who "pays and pays and pays."

In the last act, "Ernest," the male victim, tears off his dress coat, collar and tie in a fine frenzy, dramatically announcing that he is going back to his little revenue sweetheart, leaving the wealthy and elderly dame, naked as he went to her.

Here is the way the play is advertised in the newspapers:

"Three acts of sex horrors, repellent as a cage of snakes and as fascinating. It is your New York and mine, you are told, but you pray God you don't see it. The play is a drink of blood of youth and pays in literal gold. A city where young talent screams in asking eagerly for a chance, then eagerly for 'pull,' then for a ticket to the privilege of being 'kept,' and when the soul is sold, grovels in the gutter and talks about it."

There is hope, however, in the fact that a first night audience greeted the thing with loud laughter.

In the last 20 years there have been 8,500,000 arrests made by the New York police. Records of these, as well as 10,000,000 arrests in the period from 1845 to date, are contained in the archives of the police crime index bureau.

In the days before filing systems and index cards, the names of persons arrested were contained in sturdy old ledgers known as police "blotters."

There are 40,000 of these in the bureau.

There are bales of anonymous letters, each having some bearing on the "breaking" of an important case, while voluminous files hold the records of the missing persons bureau. Hundreds of men and women disappear each year in New York. Some are found, others, like Dorothy Arnold, are never heard of again and their stories resolve themselves into long blue slips in the index bureau.

The files are constantly in use, keeping 18 men busy day and night.

An indication of the completeness of the files may be gleaned from the fact that the other day the detective department asked for the number of a watch that was stolen 20 years ago. They got it from the index bureau in 20 minutes.

Among other curiosities Greenwich Village boasts of a life-long violin maker, who cannot play a note. He learned his trade in Germany, where he first made zithers. He estimates he turned out at least a thousand of them before starting on the manufacture of violins.

It takes Mr. Schwanda two weeks to make a good violin. There is no question about the violin being good. Schwanda admits it, and that's that.

All manner of persons visit his shop. A delicatessen dealer with a contract to make the corner of the violin maker's place is one of his customers, likewise a policeman who journeys from New Jersey once or twice a month to talk violins with the little Austrian.

There used to be a carpenter who visited the shop. Several years ago he purchased a fine Lute for $20. Later he secured some money and turned in the old instrument for a new one. He saved and kept swapping until eventually he had a fine Lute for $1,000. He died recently and the fiddle is now hanging in Schwanda's window with a For Sale tag on it.

Road Map Made in 1923

And Properly Filed

Editor Constitution: In my article on our road system you printed in last Sunday's issue I made the statement that I doubted that an amended road map had ever been filed with the secretary of state since the original one made by Dr. C. N. Strahan.

I am in receipt of a note from Chairman John N. Hilder, saying that:

"A map was made as provided by law in 1923 after the state highway map had been revised by the bureau of public roads. This map was filed with the secretary of state and today can be found on file in his office. Also, a copy was furnished to the bureau of public roads and is now in the files of that department in Washington, D. C."

I wish you would give this same publicity as you gave my article for the road map plans for a state highway to build our roads quickly and economically as against the present plan of "pay-as-you-go." I have too many friends who are suffering from misadventures. My informant was in a position to know whereof he spoke about the filing of road maps.

Under the Laurel Tree

I.

Under a laurel tree,
Whose branches tenderly Shade the flowers which grow
On the grave below.
Ah, within it there lies
The tender heart of a youth,
And crossed hands on his breast
In everlasting rest.

II.

Sweet was the thought to lay
His body here away,
His tender heart, his eyes,
So lustrous, all that dies
And which soon dust must be
Under the laurel tree.

And though his form we miss,
This grave, a shrine it is.

III.

The master of sweet songs,
To famous men belongs,
His genius was great—
He made the laurels grow.

With charm and deepest thought,
His finest verse was wrought,
He moved our mind and heart,
Stanton, master of the art.

LOOKING AND LISTENING

BY SAM W. SMALL

The South Is Being Hogged of Justice in Allotting Public Buildings.

When a republican majority in congress gets a chance to slam the south it does the job good and hard. There is no general public building program in the south, and in recent years congress has been clamorous for federal buildings in the south, and incidentally, to get something out of the "poor barrel" for campaign benefits.

This public building bill has been passed, and for rivers and harbors, been the favorite pork barrel over which there was always much trading and contention.

Under the new budget law and the "economy" policy of President Coolidge, the latest bill took the unusual form of a blanket appropriation, with authority given to the treasury and postoffice departments to allocate the funds as their joint commission might recommend.

The only reservation was that each state should be entitled to at least two new federal buildings for postoffice purposes. The secretary of the treasury also is specifically directed to acquire sites and to extend or remodel existing buildings in certain cities to the extent of a separate authorization of $15,000,000. Among those cities only one is in Georgia, which is West Point.

Where the Money Will Go.

The joint departmental report has now been made to congress and presents what is an investigating commission says are the minimum and necessary requirements in each of the states of the union.

The total amount for these minimum needs is set at $167,850,500. There are 58 cities, other than the 179 included in the above estimate, that have no federal building, but fall within the purview of the public buildings act, and it is estimated that new buildings for them will require an expenditure of approximately $8,477,500.

That raises the total estimate for the two groups to $176,328,000. Leaving out of the estimate the latter group and figuring on the primary estimate of $167,850,500, we find several interesting facts.

In the 14 southern states from Virginia to Texas, including West Virginia and Oklahoma, live more than 30 per cent of the total population of the 48 states of the union.

It is notorious that since the war between the states, ended 62 years ago, the republicans, in control of federal affairs, except for 16 years, have given scant recognition to the needs of the south in the way of sufficient and adequate public buildings.

Same Old Spare Ribs.

Now, in this new deal to supply the public buildings that otherwise would have been authorized since the war, the south is to be handed the same old spare ribs. It is grossly absurd that nearly 35,000,000 people in the south need fewer facilities, in buildings especially, than do the already handsomely supplied 11,000,000 people in the state of New York.

Let the south kick—and kick hard!

EVERYDAY QUESTIONS

ANSWERED BY

Dr. S. Parkes Cadman.

Brooklyn, N. Y.

Since Thomas Paine in his "Age of Reason" did not believe in anything from the outside, but refuted the Bible by showing very contradictory confusion found inside the book itself, how is it that it can go on still believing and teaching the Bible?

The internal contradictions of the Bible, which is a literature covering over a thousand years in its development, do not in any way injure the values of its moral and spiritual contents. I know of no man who has refuted the Bible nor do I anticipate such a paragon will appear in the future.

But it is a comparatively easy task to refute dogmatic views about the Bible which claim for it what it does not claim for itself or assert it teaches what its general tenor flatly contradicts.

The church continues to believe in and cherish the cardinal truths of the book because there is nothing better for her purpose. So long as this is so, I feel that it will not be a detriment for following the path her experience has verified.

Alabama.

If any of your cases are like mine I should be glad to have your counsel. A friend told me he was concerned about the stability of his bank. He had a large sum of money deposited in it and was advised to withdraw his deposits. I did so, also advising two friends of mine to do the same, one of whom, unfortunately, died before he could do so. There was a run on the bank.

Which it survived, but the scare has been traced to me, and I, although a Christian and a church member, have been condemned as a very sinful person. Do you think so?

No. The real issue is whether or not you were indiscreet, especially since somebody's indiscretion shook a whole community. If you have given me the main facts you were wise in withdrawing your deposits from this bank and it was permissible for you to advise your two friends to do likewise.

But did your informant have good ground for his distrust of the bank? Also did he pledge you to secrecy? If so, you had no right to communicate his information to the two friends. And did you pledge them to secrecy? If not, you must shoulder your share of the blame for the trouble the banking one has caused.

Faithfully all four of your broadcasted rumors which have no foundation in fact and afterward assumed serious proportions. Baseless doubts about the ability of a financial institution are almost as dangerous as the personal character and in some instances more mischievous to the neighborhood.

Advise you to explain your conduct to the directors of the bank and express your profound regret for what has occurred. Your action was not sinful, but it was so pronouncedly foolish that it is a pity you are not a child of the world.

Truly "the children of this world are often wiser than the children of light."

Your Boy and Your Girl

BY ARTHUR DEAN, SC. D.

The Parent Counsellor

CURIOSITY IN PLAYTHINGS.

Once upon a time I had a drum. And how I did beat it! But soon my youthful enthusiasm for a new, noisy noise gave way to that normal instinct of all childhood—curiosity.

Suddenly all was quiet. I shook the drum, turned it over, and it was very light and then listened. Ah! I knew what to do. A few jabs with mama's kitchen knife and an entrance was forced. My chubby hands plunged in with the expectation that I could draw out handfuls of noise.

I found nothing. No noise to break that silence. And that drum never did bring forth noise again. I had learned my first lesson.

More than once since then when looking at life philosophically, I have said to myself: "The trouble with you is too often you have cut open the drums of life in order to see from whence comes the noise." More than once I have said to myself: "If I had but an analysis of his faith. More than one friend has gone into the discard because he insisted too strenuously with his desire to know the truth behind the friendship. More than one lover has lost his sweetheart by too much insistence on 'Sweet why do you love me?'"

But back to children. Wanton destructiveness plays a very small part in this child business of destroying toys, investigating clocks and watches, and poking the eyes out of dolls. Just as I desired to discover the source of the noise, so young children desire to "find the tick" of a watch or clock. More than one perfectly respectable watch has taken on the appearance of a wreck through an attempt to find the tick. When the drum no longer performs and the watch no longer ticks because of youthful curiosity, the child is just as much surprised at the injury done as is the adult.

The age at which this overwhelming desire to find out the construction of things reaches its height is between the ages of four and eight years. The destructive curiosity, due to the brain development of mentally active children, needs guidance in order to furnish a proper outlet. It has not been the lower, destructive curiosity, which is beneficial to be confused by the careless destruction of toys due to a lack of interest, but the higher, the quest for pieces in order to see what makes it work is to be commended; a child that throws a toy violently on the floor and thereby wrecks it needs something quite different.

It may be that he has a pain under his belt, or that he needs a nap or that the toy-wrecker needs much simpler toys that will stand the strain. Toys that have wheels and motion are always good. How I wish that every child had the opportunity of using a hammer, four nails, four spools and a piece of flat wood that he might make his own little "go-cart." Of course, the first thing to break is the wheel, but he deliberately threw it against the wall? I should say so!

Healthy children, if allowed to develop under normal conditions, find interests and amusements for themselves. The child who has been so reared that the needs to be constantly amused and that he is given every kind of toy or plaything, has been deprived of one of the rights of childhood.

Pet Names.

My stepfather calls my mother such names as cow, molly, and even worse. I don't mind much to the point but when he started calling me the same names I told him I didn't like it. He got mad and told me I thought too much of myself. Now he has gone. Who was right?

THE INHIBITION BLUES.

The secondary "binding" effect of certain physical factors such as castor oil is pretty generally recognized even by people who imagine a frequent or habitual use of such physics is a good way to combat constipation.

I would a thousand times rather tell a lie or drop a hint than our best advertiser is telling one or even utter a biting sarcasm than print bad news or a bargain lot of symptoms, but this constipation habit is so common and so demoralizing that it can do no harm and may do some good to impress upon victims the fact that it is nothing but a habit, a weak and depraved habit, a habit which one deliberately cultivates and which, once established, tends to perpetuate itself.

Headache, indigestion, nervousness, inhibition comes in.

Inhibition is a function, not just a ponderous term, but difficult to explain by which the muscular cost of the engines there is a fly wheel. These gadgets serve to control, restrain or steady the working of the engine. The heart has one set of nerves which tend to speed up action, and another set which inhibit or slow down the heart beat. The alimentary tract, particularly the intestine, has one set of nerves which convey impulses to speed up peristalsis or the waves of contraction by which the muscular coat of the intestine propels the food mass or residue along the canal. Fine and dandy this onward urge, but nervous mechanism is justly popular but nobody would want to be afflicted with such a mechanism were it not for the restraining, controlling, steady or inhibiting influence of another set of nerves which keep these peristaltic movements from becoming too ambitious.

For example, fright may paralyze the inhibition apparatus of the alimentary tube of course wholly involuntary, just as is the inhibition apparatus of the heart, and fortunate we are that it is beyond conscious control, for otherwise we would probably make a sad mess of it, what with our nervousness, our fears, our anxieties, and a state of indifference or unconcern as to whether the bowels move today or not, and especially a cheerful, optimistic attitude, so that the very practice of marking of physiology, permits nature to manage this function in the normal manner.

Not only castor oil and saline laxatives or cathartics but also the crude physics derived from herbs or medicinal plants are notorious for producing next day inhibition, so that every little dose of your favorite physic may be said to add a little more constipation to what you've already got.

This explains the phenomenal fortunes which have been made in the physic industry. Unsophisticated customers just do not inhibit.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

No Diet List.

You said that if a certain correspondent would write and tell me he had Bright's disease you would send a list of things he should eat and should not eat.

Answer—No, you misunderstood what I said. I said if the correspondent would write, enclosing a stamped envelope bearing his address and telling me he has Bright's disease, I would send him some general advice on the subject. This general advice touches upon the question of diet, but in no case can I give a "diet list" telling a correspondent what he may or may not eat or what he should or should not eat, no matter what the trouble may be. That is mere humbug, which had better leave to life insurance concerns, quack doctors and patent medicine firms. No one but the patient's individual medical adviser can intelligently prescribe a diet. Any cut and dried diet lists are worth less than the paper they are printed on.

Epsom Salts.

Is the constant taking of Epsom salts injurious to health? Does it prevent lead poisoning if one works in a place where he is liable to get it? (L. R. E.)

Answer—The habit of prolonged use of Epsom salts is rather injurious.

Humpty Dumpty.

The folklorists say that Humpty Dumpty's prototype was Cardinal Wolsey, the story of whose fall was summarized in the popular song. This theory, adds the Guardian, that a

A Spray of Valley Lilies.

Only a spray of valley lilies, a dream through all the years.
She closely pressed within a book, and now through silver tears
She turns again the yellowed page, and gently, closely pressed
The oldest fragrance comes again, and she winces her breast
That hour withered long ago, when night was calm and still
And stars had crowned the April night and far across the hill
The moon, a silver disc, arose, and in the garden there
He kissed her parted lips and placed the lily in her hair.
And when she turns the yellowed page, she winces her breast
She turns a way and dreams again that hour long ago.

Only a spray of valley lilies, a dream through all the years.
Her heart would never forget it for queenly pomp or gold!
And yet to such a tiny thing—a faded spray or two,
Its fragrance faded with the years, but when the shadows blue
Have danced their lily symphony upon the one meadow
And softly on each lily there the silver dewdrops fall—
She turns again the yellowed page, with aching fingertips,
And her face again and tint her

MRS. ROSA CHADWICK, FLORIDIAN, DIES HERE

Stricken with a fatal heart attack while attending a local picture show late Wednesday afternoon, Mrs. Rosa L. Chadwick, 73, of Jacksonville, Fla., president of the B. H. Chadwick Furniture company, of that city, died in the private ambulance of Awtry & Lowndes while en route to a private hospital.

Mrs. Chadwick had been living with her nephew, Harry H. MacKiran, of 1119 Peachtree road, for the past several months. She has been a sufferer for several months from acute heart attacks, it was stated.

A native of Ohio, Mrs. Chadwick moved to Florida when a young woman, and she and her husband, the late B. H. Chadwick, entered the furniture business in Jacksonville, more than 45 years ago. For many years she was vice president of the company, and when her husband died about ten years ago, was named president, a position she held at the time of her death. She had been active in the interests of the business until the past few months, when her health failed.

Mrs. Chadwick is survived by a brother, Harry A. Burke, and a nephew, Harry H. MacKiran, both of Atlanta. Funeral arrangements had not been completed late Wednesday night. The body will be taken to Jacksonville for interment, at a time to be announced later.

Carter Is Elevated.

Columbia, S. C., January 26.—(AP) Jesse F. Carter, state senator from Hamburg county, was elected associate justice of the state supreme court by the general assembly tonight. He will complete the unexpired portion of the term of Richard C. Watts, of Laurens, who was recently elected chief justice, succeeding the late Eugene B. Gary.

Mussolini's Philosophy of Life

BY GEORGE SYLVESTER VIERECK.

Woman Must Share With Man Important Problems of the World in This Century, But Questions of Franchise Unimportant, Says Mussolini.

(Copyright, 1927, in All Countries by North American Newspaper Alliance. Reproduction in whole or in part prohibited.)

"You believe that woman will have to bear a larger share of the world's economic burdens?"

"Undoubtedly."

"If such is the case, how can you or anyone deny woman complete equality with man?"

"I am not afraid of increasing the political influence of woman. Some alarmists fear that the increase in the political power of woman will lead the world to a catastrophe. That I deny."

"In considering the woman question, we must ask ourselves: In what century do we live? In our own, then, must settle the woman question, then, in the fashion of our century and not in the fashion of a century long past."

"I see little to gain from discussions of whether woman is man's inferior or man's superior. That is because woman is so different."

"I should say of woman that she does not display the capacity for what is called synthesis, that she is not a great creative artist. On the other hand, intuition always seemed to me a quality finer and better than intelligence. Any horse can display intelligence but only a woman has intuition. But that very intuition makes her distrustful of politics and politicians. It is to me doubtful if more than half the women in the world will ever exercise their right to vote even if all the women in the world will the right of suffrage."

"Whether," I remarked, "woman avails herself of the privilege of the vote is her affair. But I fail to see how any democracy, and you claim that fascism is democratic, can deny complete equality to both sexes?"

"The question of votes for women," the Dictator replied, "is not a question of democracy or aristocracy. You ask me for proof? I believe that one of the most democratic of nations, the world—a land more democratic than the democrats—is Switzerland. Yet Switzerland has not given votes to women."

"I suppose no one would deny that Spain is a land rigidly Catholic, proudly aristocratic, wedded to the traditions of the past. Yet Spain, which has granted woman suffrage and which has ensured no general destruction of society there."

"No objection to Suffrage."

"I have no objection to woman suffrage, but I do not think it is of the utmost importance. Woman suffrage will not change the face of the world, if only because woman, while different from man, is not after all so very different from us. More important than suffrage for either sex, is self-discipline, the ability to live and die for an ideal. The course of history, of the human race in the twentieth century, will not depend upon how men and women vote. It will depend upon what they do."

"What," I asked Mussolini, "is the contribution of fascism to civilization?"

"Fascism," the Dictator of Italy replied, with flashing eyes, "leads mankind out of the blind alleys. It reconciles capital and labor in a new synthesis. Capital and labor have grown too strong for the state. Parliamentary government proved itself a helpless nurse, unable to control those unruly young giants, until fascism stepped in."

"Society was sinking into a bog of rhetoric. Fascism compels the age to surrender the nursery tales of liberalism. For futile strife and self-seeking, fascism substitutes discipline. The world is indebted to fascism for the new discipline."

"Today fascism is a party, a militia, a corporation, a society. That is not enough. Fascism must become something more. Fascism must be a way to live, a manner of existence."

"What is that mode of life? Courage, first of all. Love of adventure, dislike of money, talk about peace when there is no peace, readiness to do and to dare, contempt for all sitting down and taking things easy—these make up fascism."

"Do you think," I replied, "that fascism can redeem other countries as well as Italy? In Germany, in Austria, in France, even in England, I have heard the cry for Mussolini."

"Fascism Purely Italian."

The Duce smiled, without amusement.

"Fascism is a purely Italian product. Other countries must work out their own salvation. Every form of government must be indigenous to its own soil. Other states cannot adopt fascism, but they may evolve a system like ours, based on their own idiosyncrasies. They must put an end to excessive parliamentarism if the world is to survive. Too much parliamentarism is the bane of modern civilization."

"The United States does not need fascism. The United States, like every democracy, must create its own safeguard against the evils of excessive parliamentarism. The moment for such action arrives when parliamentarism paralyzes the forces of government. Fascism has tamed parliamentarism in Italy. The representatives of the people discuss, approve and make laws in Italy. That is what a parliament is for."

"What fascism really has done," the Duce continued, "is to vindicate the executive power. Your constitution, with its checks and balance, reserves the coordinate powers of the executive. In many European countries, including Italy, the executive had become the plaything of parliamentary factions. The head of the state stands for all, not for a party. To that extent, I agree with the Kaiser."

"The executive in any system of administration should not be left impotent. The executive as its name implies, exists to do things, to get things done, to translate a program or policy into an accomplished fact."

"That is more contemptible than an executive power impotent to do, incapable of action?"

"The restoration of the executive to its rightful place in the government was the head and front of our platform. The executive power is the agent of the national existence and the proof of the power of the national will. The executive is always faced with problems that it must solve."

"Now this executive power, the symbol of the national sovereignty, cannot be ground down under the heel of any other department of the government. The executive must be the wheels of government in motion and oil them with systematic vigilance."

"Never can the executive power in a state be brought down to the level of a set of puppets worked by men behind the scenes who only pull the wires."

"That is the doctrine of fascism and that doctrine fascism has made an accomplished fact."

Tomorrow—The Function of Force.

Milton C. Work's Pointer

On How To Play Bridge

(Milton C. Work, the international bridge authority, will answer your auction bridge questions. A stamped self-addressed envelope must accompany each request for replies.)

The pointer for today is:

Insufficient bids or bids out of turn may not be penalized if the player on the left of the offender bid, pass or deny before the penalty is claimed.

The penalty for a bid out of turn is that the bid is declared void, the adversary whose turn it is to bid declares and the partner of the offender is prohibited from participating in the auction during the remainder of that hand.

If the partner of the offender be the player whose turn it is to declare, the penalty is the same except that the turn to declare passes to the adversary on the left of partner of the offender and on the right of the offender. When an insufficient bid is made, the penalty as far as the partner is concerned is practically the same. The insufficient bid is void and the insufficient bidder is required to make a sufficient bid, which he may do in any declaration, and his partner is barred from the auction.

Laws 20 and 22 cover these cases, but misunderstandings frequently arise because some players suppose that it is the offender who is not allowed to bid subsequently. These rules, like all others, are created so as to make the punishment fit the crime.

The improper information given by irregular bids cannot be of benefit to the player who makes the bid, but it is of great value to his partner and therefore it is the partner whose mouth is closed.

One feature of both the insufficient bid and the bid out of turn which is sometimes misunderstood is the one contained in the pointer given at the beginning of this article. When, in the auction, a bid is irregular, the adversary on the left of the player in error either bids, passes or doubles, such action accepts the irregular bid as regular; and the auction continues with the player on the left of the one who condoned the offense exactly as if no offense had been committed, no penalty being enforced.

Another question often asked is whether a Declarer who pulls a card from the Dummy and then returns it is compelled to play the card he has touched, or may play some other. On this point Law 31 (c) is most explicit. A card touched in Dummy must be played, and it is not to be returned to the hand of the Declarer. "I arrange" or words to that effect, or unless he be manifestly pushing one or more cards aside to reveal the card he desires to play, the failure to enforce this rule leads to delays and sloppy play; and sometimes induces an adversary to expose a card and give undue advantage to the Declarer. The game produces the most satisfactory results when all penalties are enforced.

AWARDS OFFERED IN SAFETY DRIVE

Installation of officers and announcement of awards to be made to the city school with the best safety record for 1927 featured the weekly luncheon of the Atlanta Safety council held Wednesday at the Ansley hotel.

James A. Hollomon, associate editor of the Constitution, was the guest of honor.

Mr. Weisiger will be introduced by W. Eugene Harrington, chairman of the Atlanta Boy Scout council, who will be a special guest at the luncheon. The program will be in charge of Stewart F. Gelders, Atlanta publicity man and member of the Boy Scout committee of the Atlanta post of the legion.

A special committee of the post, composed of Major Candler, Mr. Gelders and Eugene Calus, will report to the Friday luncheon meeting on the progress made in the post's effort to obtain a large German cannon.

The committee was delegated by the executive body to attend an "old horse sale" to be held today at which the cannon is to be auctioned off to the highest bidder.

Members of the post have been asked to bring their younger brothers as their guests at the Friday "big brothers' luncheon. The invitation is to include young men above school age now but who were too young to be in the military service during the world war.

for the Atlanta Constitution, and president of the council, who presided, announced that The Constitution will offer a handsome silver loving cup to the city school making the best safety record for the coming year, conditions of the award to be worked out by the council committee. This offer was immediately supplied by one for $100 in cash to the winner, made by S. E. Shumate, vice president of the council.

J. Lee Edwards, vice president of the A. B. & C. railroad, was formerly inducted into office as president for the coming year.

Other officers installed follows: S. E. Shumate, Willis A. Sutton and S. C. Harrison, vice presidents; and G. A. Deibert, secretary.

H. H. McLaughlin, senior engineer for the Traveler's Insurance company, was principal speaker, taking as his subject, "Why Protect the Children?"

The speaker called attention to many accidents in Atlanta during 1926, with particular regard to those resulting from skating on the streets.

"The little fellows," Mr. McLaughlin said, "often do not realize their peril; they should be taught safety fundamentals while their minds are young and particularly receptive to impressions."

Chief of Police James L. Beavers pledged his support to a child educational campaign sponsored by the city council, aimed at awakening parents to the need of instilling safety principles in youthful minds, and adopting means whereby public schools may be brought into the movement.

EVANGELINE BOOTH POSTPONES VISIT HERE UNTIL APRIL

Evangeline Booth, celebrated commander of the Salvation Army organization, has postponed her visit to Atlanta and plans to come here in California the first week in April, instead of February 8, local officials announced Wednesday night.

The decision to delay her trip was made by Commander Booth when she learned that the new Atlanta training college for Salvation Army officers would be ready for opening early in April, the officials stated.

Originally Commander Booth was to be in Atlanta February 8 for the installation of the leaders of the recently established southern territorial headquarters here. These ceremonies would also be postponed until the first week in April.

Program of 16 Favorites Will Be Rendered by Artists Over National 'Hook-Up'

New York, January 26.—(Special.) Sixteen numbers, practically every one of which is among the favorite selections of the artists who are to present them, will constitute the program of the third radio concert of the 1937 series of the Victor Talking Machine company Friday night.

The artists to be heard are Giovanni Martinelli, tenor, and Miss Lucrezia Bori, soprano, both of the Metropolitan Opera company, and Pablo Casals, 'cello, with the Victor Salon orchestra under direction of Nathaniel Shilkret.

The program, which will be one hour in length, will begin at 9 p. m. eastern standard time. It will be heard through stations of the "red" and "blue" network of the National Broadcasting company, and which will reach Atlanta through WSB.

An interesting feature of the program will be two duet numbers by Mr. Martinelli and Miss Bori.

The following program is announced by the Victor company:

Moonlight and Roses (Black-More); Two Guitars (Kuslan Gypsy Song); Victor Salon orchestra under direction of Nathaniel Shilkret; "Rachet" quand du Seigneur, from "I Juive" (Halvey); Nino (De Leva-Tanara); Giovanni Martinelli; Nocturne in E Flat (Chopin-Popper); Musical (Schubert); Pablo Casals; Voi che sapete, from "The Marriage of Figaro" (Mozart); Il Bacio (Arditi)—Miss Lucrezia Bori; A Little Love, a Little Kiss (Ross-Sileu); Victor Salon orchestra; Air de la fleur, from "Carmen" (Bisot); Giovanni Martinelli; Parle-moi de ma mere, from "Carmen" (Bisot); Duet, Miss Bori and Mr. Martinelli.

ON THE AIR FRIDAY

LUCREZIA BORI, Famous Victor opera singer, who will feature the Victor radio hour from the National Broadcasting company string Friday night.

MEXICO AWAITS NEXT OIL MOVE

Mexico City, January 26.—(AP)—Officially the Mexican government is silent on the controversy between this country and the United States over the new petroleum and land laws, but awaits the next move, without indicating whether it will initiate further steps toward arbitration.

Oil interests here have made no formal reply to the statement of the industry and commerce departments that the cancelled drilling permits originally were issued with the knowledge of the oil companies that they would be cancelled if the companies did not comply with the law.

Tampico dispatches report about 5,000 workmen in the oil fields will be idle within a month through reduction or suspension of operations. A relief committee has been appointed to aid the unemployed.

Sunday's mass meeting in Mexico City, at which the United States was roundly denounced for its policy toward Mexico and Nicaragua, having led to unfavorable references to the treaty between Cuba and the United States, the Cuban charge d'affaires, Ramon de Castro, issued a statement today denying the treaty violates Cuban sovereignty.

"The treaty," says the charge, "has as its fundamental base maintenance and defense of the sovereignty of Cuba. It guarantees the sovereignty of both peoples. It is a pact of guarantees in which both Cuba and the United States make mutual concessions."

DRY LAW OPPOSITION ASSAILED BY HUDSON

Washington, January 26.—Anyone who opposes the prohibition amendment attacks the integrity of the government, Representative Hudson, Michigan, publican, told the national conference of the Women's Christian Temperance union here today.

"Continued opposition to the law will result in the disappearance of stable government," Hudson warned. "Violations are festering ulcers in the social and civic lives of our communities."

Three major changes are needed to curtail crime and enforce the laws, Hudson declared, and outlined them as follows:

- 1—More active interest in politics by inactive men and women.
- 2—Removal of indifferent and treacherous enforcement officials.
- 3—Disbarment of irresponsible and corrupt judges.

Any major political party which nominates a wet candidate for president is signing its own political death warrant, Mrs. Nellie Burger, Springfield, Mo., president of the Missouri W. C. T. U., told the convention.

"The voice of Tammany is heard in the land, but it will never be anything but a voice," she declared. "The vote of the land is dry and will remain dry."

Mrs. Francis P. Parks, Evanston, Ill., national corresponding secretary of the organization, revealed plans for a 100,000 membership drive, which is to be launched within the near future.

RADIO-ING The Air Waves.

BY WILL SMITH.

The weather man finally landed a bit of poor reception for the dial twister and the listening public Wednesday night by his continued prediction that rain was due to fall in Atlanta. We fully realize the weather was unseasonable and that the farmer needed every bit of the rainfall to which we fell their throughout Wednesday. However, we do hate to miss out on our radio programs.

Wednesday night was no exception but we considered ourselves very fortunate indeed to be able to turn off the switch on the Radiola side of the Brunswick Panatropes we are trying out and turn to the phonograph side of the outfit for a night's enjoyment.

Luckily, our good friend J. A. McMillan, in charge of the music department at M. Rich & Bros. company, who sent the Brunswick out for the dial twister to play with, included a number of the new Brunswick "Light-Ray" electrically made records that are to be released Thursday.

We'll bet the first one we played got more than its fair share of practice. It is the latest Wendell Hall release, carrying two of his best-known numbers, "I'm Tellin' the Birds Tellin' the Bess, How I Love You," and "Take in the Sun, Hang Out the Moon." The greatest satisfaction we got out of this record was the fact that we could repeat it as often as we cared, while we had been listening to the "red-headed music-maker" over the radio, we would have had to be satisfied with just those numbers he was willing to sing. Believe me, all those who remember Wendell Hall and his appealing musical renditions should hear this new number.

Ben Selvin and his orchestra poured out two lulling fox trots, "I Never Knew What the Moonlight Could Do" and "My Baby Knows How," while the Wolverines vied with them for popularity in their rendition of "Crazy Quilt" and "You're Burnin' Me Up." The four are sure enough stepping pieces, and we don't mean maybe!

Throughout the entertainment we felt considerably at home with the selections Mr. McMillan sent us, for so many of our favorite radio entertainers are turning to recording their

INSTALLMENT IV.

PERFECTION'S HEAD.

Leland rode out through the lot, walking his horse. Lyman's head came sticking round the corner, after him. But it withdrew hastily as Leland rose in his stirrups and looked back.

Some one must have come to a window directly over the windows of the fan mail department—the some one he had turned to look for. Tall in his stirrups, he waved his hand and smiled. Riding without a hat, the morning sunlight turned even the gray of his curls to gold. Where was any scowl now, or broken heart? The pose, the motion, flashed an electric message, "Be of good cheer, my heart—the world is ours!" By scarcely a shift of his horse, which broke into a brisk trot, carrying him off through the half wrecked palaces and prisons of the lot to the "location," where a carefully selected "mob" awaited him.

Lyman's face was now very red, his eyes moist and glittering with chagrin. Yet he could think of no death-dealing reprieve to the way of that departing back. Suddenly he leaned forward and, with swelling breast, ran out his tongue. After all, it is the primitive gestures which speak from the heart! Cheered by having got away with that one, he indulged in another. Raising his thumb, he set its tip to the tip of his nose; an airy twirl of the fingers completed the immortal affront. Leland, not knowing that he had been shot in the back and should have fallen, rode on.

Into the silence of the fan mail department crept an awed voice. "Who was it he waved to, I wonder?" "Who do you suppose?" retorted the oldest girl. "Didn't she move up there so as to be away by herself from other people?" "The youngest primped her mouth," "Rooms like Miss Revell or Mr. Harcourt's got ain't good enough for the Golden Idol!"

The awed voice crept out again. "They say Leland, though, can do anything with her. They say he wouldn't even let her buy that lovely little gold fan Santonelli had over here last week. Everybody that was hangin' round the set was watching, and she was just going to take it when Mr. Leland called right out. Why Dulcie, I thought we'd across there should be no more extravagances!" And she gave it right up. Not a kick out of her!"

"We had agreed!" flung out the thin nosed girl. "We! Does he think it's a respectable word, even? And his poor wife all these years in a lunatic asylum!"

Lyman, feeling much better, began to puff and preen, settling himself in his skin more jauntily. Having done all that he came there to do—for he had spent so much watching, hastening, and hiding quite gratuitously, with no notion of a direct encounter—Lyman began whistling back toward normalcy.

Normalcy in the fan mail department also, the awe quite departed. But one girl puzzled. "If Miss Jayne's letter ain't to be opened, I wonder what Mr. Leland wants of it?"

"He's going to open it, all right. Isn't it by the author's promise me the autograph?" And the oldest girl stamped "Robert Harcourt" on the answer she had written to a love letter which Robert Harcourt had never read.

"No, no, that's already old stuff! Heh? I say bigger 'n' better pictures 's' already old stuff a long while!"

The voice of Mr. Hertzog, telephoning his publicity department in New York, mounted candidly over the partition between his office and the scenario department, from which he might almost be said to have no secrets, for the partition, a mere symbol of privacy, stopped some feet short of the ceiling.

"I want you should take a new slogan I'm telling you now!"

"PERFECTION PICTURES."

"THEY REACH ABOVE AND BEYOND."

"O, it's my boy thought of it—Lyman. He says it's time now we were putting out pieces about this—some kind of vision—ye—uh, wider—wider vision. Wait: I got his memo—"

Finding it, he began reading, as if with one finger:

"For—tunately, the president of Perfection Pictures is a man of prophetic vision, whose grasp of the future rises above and beyond the heavy-handed and un-see-reel-istic restrictions of the present commercial market to the splendid and as yet otherwise undreamed-of bigger and better motion picture beautiful."

"Heh?" said bigger "n' bett-?"

"Well, cut it out. He's got finer an' fitter you can run secondary. Can't you say 'the finer and fitter motion picture beautiful, above and beyond

all standards set by any other producer of the present day?' Something like that. O, and Sam—get it out with our new special, 'The Red Lights of Midnight!' Ye—uh, start it with the

The room in which the scenario department functioned was big and sunny, comfortably if hideously furnished in the heaviest golden oak and a green carpet rug, patterned in black and ginger. At the end nearest Mr.

Hertzog's door, Mr. Horner presided at his desk, solemnly cheerful

both as to countenance and costume, for, aiming to look mature and imposing as the head of an office, he was conscientiously dressy. From across the room he was faced by Miss Jacobs and her filing cabinet. The six readers sat round a long table with a communal typewriter in the center; at one end were stacked the new novels, at the other the magazines of the month, plays in script, and the despised

"originals." As a general thing, these stacks diminished rapidly, the typewritten synopsis and reports piling

high on Mr. Horner's desk. Mr.

Horner had never said whether he considered the practice of having each reader report on two or three novels

a day, six days a week, was a better formula for finding picture material or for making sausages, but during his administration there had never been a failure in the required number of reports. And to Mr. Hertzog there was a nameless charm in the sight of his scenario department sitting like a good child, head bent, eyes upon the printed page.

It took a Henry Horner to guess

why Mr. Hertzog liked to stand on the threshold of the communicating door and beam in upon this picture.

A guileless vanity in Mr. Hertzog was fed high by seeing so many persons who could read easily reading for him.

Not so many years since the fact that he could read at all, but especially in English, had been a marvel and glory to him! Few had been the school days of the hungry, stoop shouldered,

drudging little boy who had somehow fought his way into growing up as Mr.

Hertzog and who still lived somewhere

inside the president of Perfection Pictures. And now, here he could employ any number of persons who had spent years in school to come and read what he was too busy to bother with! When

Mr. Hertzog stood beaming upon the best heads of his readers and saw the pages turn it was as if cream were being poured all over his nervous system.

Miss Kitty Hagood Will Wed Mr. Gambrell in February

General Johnson Hagood, U. S. A., and Mrs. Hagood announce the engagement of their daughter, Kitty, to E. Smith Gambrell, formerly of South Carolina, but now residing in Atlanta, the ceremony to take place in St. Michael's church in Charleston, S. C., the date of the marriage to be announced later.

The lovely bride-elect is a representative of aristocratic and distinguished families which have been identified for generations with South Carolina. She is a beautiful young woman of the blond type of loveliness and has been a popular figure in Atlanta society ever since her return from school to reside at Fort McPherson, where her father, General Hagood, has resided as commander of the fourth corps area.

Mr. Gambrell is a son of Mr. and Mrs. Enoch Pepper Gambrell, of Boston, S. C., and was graduated from the Harvard law school. He served with the 51st division in the world war, and went overseas with his division. He is a brilliant member of the legal profession in Atlanta and is a member of the Piedmont Driving club.

As General and Mrs. Hagood are sailing on March 2 for the Philippines and leave Atlanta around February 15, the date of the wedding will precede that date. General Hagood has recently been detailed for service in Manila, where he will serve his country as commanding general of the department of the Philippines.

Convention Plans Outlined By State P.-T. A. Board

Featuring the executive board meeting of the Georgia branch National Congress of Parents and Teachers, which convened Wednesday in Atlanta at the Henry Grady hotel, was the outlining of tentative plans for the state P.-T. A. convention to be held in Macon, April 11, 12 and 13.

Mrs. H. D. Cutter, president of the Macon P.-T. A. council, announced that the Macon city auditorium had been reserved by the Macon Chamber of Commerce for the convention sessions. Mrs. Cutter briefly outlined the plans being made for the entertainment of the delegates attending the convention. She stated that both Wesleyan and Mercer colleges would entertain in honor of the visiting delegates.

It was announced that among the prominent speakers to be heard at the convention would be Miss McClellan, of Vassar college, whose subject would be "Education of the Parents; What, by Whom and How."

Other features of the morning session were reports made by state officers and district chairmen. All reports showed much progress toward the constructive program sponsored by the state P.-T. A. Mrs. Jeter's report was enthusiastically received by the board members, this report being outstanding in its achievements and accomplishments.

Among the interesting reports made by the department chairmen was the report of Mrs. Joe Dan Miller, of Gainesville, chairman of the home service department. Mrs. Miller told of the cook-book being compiled by her department with the assistance of parent-teacher associations throughout the state.

The cook-book to be presented at the state convention in Macon.

Upon the suggestion of Mrs. Bruce Carr Jones, of Macon, the board decided to recommend to all Georgia Parent-Teacher associations that each association purchase a copy of the well-known book, "Women of the South in War Times," to place in its school library.

The board decided to instruct the various chairmen of the departments through efforts of the parent-teacher associations in Georgia that they would be in charge of conference to be held in connection with the state P.-T. A. convention.

Dr. R. F. Howden, chairman of the state department of health, announced that 76,000 children in Georgia had been inoculated for prevention of diphtheria through efforts of the parent-teacher associations in Georgia. Dr. Howden urged the P.-T. A. to assist in the state in lowering the death rate of negro babies in Georgia by establishing health centers for well babies (both white and colored) throughout the state.

Among the prominent speakers of the afternoon session was Fort E. Land, state school superintendent.

Washington Seminary Sororities Meet.

The O. B. X. sorority meeting was held Wednesday afternoon at 3 o'clock with Miss Dorothy Dobbs at her home on Springdale road. The sorority will sponsor a script dance at Garber hall Monday evening, January 31, and plans for this affair were discussed.

Phi Pi Sorority.

The Phi Pi sorority held their meeting Wednesday afternoon with Mrs. Virginia Ives Hall at the home of her uncle and aunt, Colonel and Mrs. Percy Jones, on Linwood avenue. After the meeting tea was served. Miss Hall was assisted by her mother, Mrs. Hall, and Mrs. Jones.

Pi Pi Sorority.

Miss Ida Nevin entertained the members of the Pi Pi sorority at her home on East Eighth street, on Wednesday afternoon.

Plans were discussed for their formal ball which is to take place at the Druid Hills golf club on February 11.

After the meeting tea was served from a beautifully appointed table having as its decorations a lovely basket of roses.

Miss Nevin was assisted in entertaining her guests by her mother, Mrs. James Nevin.

Sigma Delta Meet.

The Sigma Delta sorority of Washington seminary was entertained on Wednesday by Miss Alma Roberts at her home on Wesley avenue. At this meeting plans were discussed for the artists' ball to be given by this sorority on April 8.

Miss Land Honors
Miss Whittemore
And Mrs. Pickett

Mrs. Fort Land entertained at a musical tea Wednesday afternoon at her home on Piedmont avenue in compliment to Miss Elinore Whittemore, of Boston, the guest of Mrs. Henry Inman, and Mrs. Lollie Marchant Pickett, who is visiting Mrs. Henry Porter, the honor guests being friends of Mrs. Land's daughter, Mrs. Alexander McLaughlin, who resides in Paris, both Miss Whittemore and Mrs. Pickett having resided in the French capital for several years.

A very interesting program featured Miss Whittemore, gifted violinist in the center of the piano by Mrs. Poulet, member of the Atlanta Conservatory faculty. A reading by Miss Sara Howden and a piano number rendered by Mrs. Poulet completed the program.

Tea was served from a lace-covered table in the dining room, adorned in the center by an imported blue muslin shoe filled with pink roses and carnations. Smaller shoes, filled with pink sweet peas, and black candlesticks, holding pink candles graced the table, which was also decorated in sunnys.

Miss Hurt Hostess To Sewing Club.

Miss Sara Hurt was hostess Tuesday afternoon to the members of her sewing club at her home on Piedmont avenue.

The members of the club include: Miss Louise Arnold, Miss Isabelle Buchanan, Miss Mary S. Carr, Miss Anne Kesslich, Miss Sara Hurt, Miss Mark Orme, Miss Ruth Osburn, Miss Helen Barbee, Miss Julianne Hagan and Miss Luitia Johnson.

Miss Meehan Informally Honored.

A lovely informal affair of Wednesday was the mah jong party at which Mrs. F. A. Wilson-Lawson was hostess at her home on Peachtree road, honoring Miss Dorothy Meehan, who is the guest of Mrs. James Smith at the Georgian Terrace.

Those present were Mesdames Smith, Oscar Pappenhimer, Lewis Parker, Ben Noble, Clarence May, Carl Dinkler, Robert Jones, Lovell Arnold, James R. Dickey, John Hill, Edwin Johnson, Cary F. Baker, Thomas B. Paine and Miss Meehan.

Miss Stafford Honored By Miss Barbee.

Miss Marcia Stafford, of Chicago, Ill., the guest of Miss Helen Barbee at her home on Palisades road, was honored at the first of a series of bridge-teas to be given by Miss Barbee at her home in honor of her guest, on Wednesday afternoon.

A profusion of pastel-shaded spring blossoms attractively decorated the home. Mrs. H. H. Barbee assisted her daughter in entertaining.

The guests included Miss Stafford, Miss Barbee, Miss Ruth McMillan, Miss Elizabeth Stark, Miss Sarah Smith, Miss Elizabeth Whitman, Miss Elizabeth Little, Miss Charlotte Kemp, of Riverside, Calif.; Miss Frances Cooper, Miss Johnnie Smith, Miss Mary Jernigan, Mrs. David Miller, Mrs. Eben Tilly.

Bull Dog Society Elects Members.

The following girls have been elected to the Bull Dog society of Washington seminary: Misses Jerry White and Hanna Sterne of the O. B. X. sorority; Misses Eleanor Johnson and Margaret Arnold of the Phi Pi sorority; and Misses Hazel Stamps and Dorothy Ray of the Pi Pi sorority.

The Bull Dogs, an honorary society, selects its members by inviting two members of each sorority in the junior class each year.

Church of Our Savior Choir Is Entertained.

Mrs. Frank Ellis entertained informally Tuesday evening at her home, 1219 Druid place, in compliment to the members of the choir of the Church of Our Savior and as a special honor in the nature of a farewell to Mrs. Adelaide Reed, the organist of the church. Mrs. Reed will leave soon for an extended visit to Florida.

During the evening Mrs. Reed was presented with a handsome white gold pin by members of the choir as a token of appreciation for her services.

Among those present were Mrs. Reed, Mr. and Mrs. John M. Pugh, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Bartlett, Mrs. M. P. McKibben, Mr. and Mrs. Carl Fox and Mr. and Mrs. Hubert Anderson.

Luncheon Parties Given at Biltmore.

Many prominent Atlantans were seen luncheon Wednesday at the Atlanta Biltmore hotel. Mrs. Lauren Goldsmith, Mrs. Bolling Jones, Jr., Miss Grey Vinson and Mrs. Frank Hartwell, Jr., were together.

Mrs. Lollie Marchant Pickett, of Paris, France, was honored in a small party.

Mrs. George Marion Fletcher, of New York, was with Mrs. Charles Cox and Miss Nell Sims.

Others present were Captain and Mrs. H. Hartley, Mr. and Mrs. F. W. Martin, Mr. and Mrs. John O. Chiles, Mrs. Key Evans, of Hot Springs; Mrs. James T. Williams, Mrs. George W. Connors, Sr., of Birmingham; Miss Anna Shingleur, of New York; Mrs. Harland K. Snyder, Mrs. Frank L. Spratt, Mrs. Charles Anderson, of Asheville; Mrs. F. Major Eugene Kelly, formerly of Atlanta, but who is now making his home in Canada, is a prominent visitor at the Atlanta Biltmore hotel.

Mrs. Harry Woodruff, of Macon, is the guest of her sister, Mrs. Griggs Schaeffer, at her apartment in the Elmwood on Peachtree road.

"Robert Burns" Is Featured by Decatur Club

A program of "Memories of Robert Burns" under the direction of Mrs. Uldric Green and Mrs. Dan White, featured the regular monthly meeting of the Decatur Woman's club last Friday. An interesting talk on Burns' life and several examples of his work were given by Miss M. L. McKinney of the department of English of Agnes Scott college.

A group of Scotch songs, including "Bonnie Doon" and "Annie Laurie" were given by Mrs. F. G. Stukes, accompanied by Mrs. S. R. Cristie, Jr. Miss Agnes Adams, violinist, presented Tambourin-Bambau and Waltz in A major, Brahms.

The program was preceded by a short business session, presided over by Mrs. Roy Jones, president. Mrs. J. A. Campbell was appointed parliamentarian to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Mrs. A. F. Samuels. Resolutions were read by Mrs. N. D. Hoyt and adopted expressing the sorrow of the club on the loss of one of its most valued members.

A handsome gavel was presented to the president by Mrs. R. J. Rambo, chairman of the literary department.

In the reports of standing committees, Mrs. Charles Weekes, house chairman, stated there was increasing demand for the use of the clubhouse for dances, teas and card parties, yielding a very satisfactory return which is being applied to the building fund. Splendid reports also were made by other standing committees.

E. P. Howell P.-T. A.
Holds Meeting.

The January meeting of the E. P. Howell School P.-T. A. held Friday afternoon was very interesting. There were 110 in attendance. Five dollars was voted out of the treasury for a prize for the best arithmetic pupil in the seventh grade, which was a suggestion of the seventh grade teacher, Mrs. Brown.

Each member agreed to give 50 cents per month toward the library for the school which they expect this year. The P.-T. A. hopes to have a complete library when the new school opens.

A feature of the afternoon was the rendition of two songs by Mrs. Patten's two small sons. Professor Ramsey gave a talk on cooperation between the home and the school and also educating the child.

The president, Mrs. J. Dobbs, prepared two interesting contests for the occasion, Mrs. Strother winning a cake and Mrs. L. B. Storey winning a box of candy.

New England Women Hold Executive Session.

The executive board of the Atlanta Colony of the National Society of New England Women met with Mrs. George E. Huff last Friday. The regular meeting of the colony was held Tuesday at the home of Mrs. Garland Peoples on East Clifton road. Mrs. M. D. Farnham, president, presiding. A report of the business transacted at the board meeting was read by Mrs. J. M. Reed, secretary, and other reports were read and accepted.

Plans were made for several social affairs to be given by the colony. Many new names were added to the membership list. The members welcomed Mrs. J. M. Reed and her mother, Mrs. Cora Benjamin, who have both been confined to their home by illness of several weeks.

After the business session the members played bridge and the hostess served luncheon. The next meeting will be held February 15 at the Atlanta Woman's club.

Mrs. R. T. Hughes and Miss Cordie Reno, of Owensboro, Ky., are guests at the Hotel Georgian Terrace.

Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Blackwell, of Birmingham, Ala., are spending some time at the Hotel Georgian Terrace.

Mr. and Mrs. Ernest D. Ivey, of 1153 Blue Ridge avenue, N. E., announce the birth of a daughter at Wesley Medical on January 25. The baby has been given the name of Dorothy Jane.

Miss Cuyler is the daughter of Telford Cuyler, who was the son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Smith, prominent pioneer citizen of Atlanta. Mr. Cuyler lived in Atlanta a number of years, later moving to New York, where he now resides.

Ask Her How She Got Thin

In every circle you see many people who have lost their excess fat. Probably some of your friends are among them. When you meet one ask how she reduced, and we think she will tell you Marmola.

The modern way to fat reduction is Marmola Prescription Tablets. It strikes at the cause of the trouble, which usually lies in a gland. No unusual exercise or diet is required. You simply take four tablets of Marmola daily until the weight comes down, normal. The way is easy, pleasant, prompt.

Marmola has been used for 19 years. Delighted users have spread the use by telling others what it did. Now people are taking a very large amount. And excess fat is disappearing fast.

Investigate Marmola. Fat is a blight to beauty, health and fitness. It adds years to one's age. Learn how easily countless folks eliminate it now.

Go try Marmola—you owe that to yourself. Its many good effects will surprise and delight you.

Marmola prescription tablets are sold by all druggists at $1 per box. If your druggist is out, he will get them at once from his jobber.

Miss Margaret Rogers To Be Honored at Pre-Nuptial Parties

Of cordial interest is the announcement of the dates of many delightful parties to be given in honor of Miss Margaret Rogers, whose marriage to Fleming Law will be an interesting event of February 25.

On February 4 the Atlanta Kappa Alpha Theta club will entertain at a bridge-tea at the home of Mrs. Matt Wixington on Peachtree road last Saturday, February 5, Miss Virginia Ashe will entertain at a bridge-tea at the East Lake Country club.

Mrs. John Knox will entertain at a bridge-tea at her home on Peachtree road Monday, February 7. On Tuesday, February 8, Mrs. H. G. Carnes and Mrs. A. L. Milligan will be joint hostesses at a bridge-tea at Mrs. Carnes' home on Fifteenth street.

Mrs. William Fish will entertain at a buffet at the Atlanta Athletic club Thursday, February 10. On Friday, February 11, Miss Eugenia Dozier will entertain at a bridge-tea at the Atlanta Woman's club. On Saturday, February 12, Miss Frances Lake.

"Ella Cinders" To Be Seen at Matinee.

Little tots and big will crowd the children's Saturday morning matinee this week at the Howard theater when Colleen Moore will be seen in "Ella Cinders," the modern version of Cinderella. Ella has a hard time of it living with her unkind stepmother and two stepisters, but the prince appears in the end and everything turns out happily. It is a picture which will appeal to those of all ages. The matinee starts at 9:30 o'clock Saturday morning, with the admission 10 cents for juniors and 25 cents for adults, including colored nurses.

An added attraction, particularly appealing to the youngest set attending the matinee, will be Baby Peggy in "The Poor Kid."

Three dainty little dancers, pupils of Miss Evelyn Donehue, will be seen in a beautiful prologue number. The "Dance Macabre" will be given by Carolyn Weinstein; Sara Agnes Dunbar will demonstrate a minuet, and Beatrice Rothchild will be seen in the "Waltz Bluebeard."

Mrs. Newton C. Wing, matinee chairman, will be assisted by Mrs. John G. Courtney, chaperon chairman, who will have a committee of 10 members of the better films committee and Miss Stanton has taught the history of art for the past 12 years, being three years at Wellesley, three years at Chouteau school, in Boston, and six years at Milton academy, in Boston. She has also painted five miniatures for Mrs. W. F. Walters, of Boston, and two for Miss Elizabeth Roberts, at Concord.

Those who have purchased season tickets should send their check to Mrs. F. G. Meeker, Dearborn 1436-W.

Craighead will entertain at a bridge-tea at her home on North Decatur road.

Miss Nannette Griffith will entertain at a bridge-tea at her home on Piedmont avenue Monday, February 14. On Tuesday evening, February 15, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Sprattlin will entertain for Miss Rogers and Mr. Law. On February 18 Miss Harriet Noyes will entertain at a bridge-supper. On Saturday afternoon, February 19, Miss Araminta Edwards will entertain at a bridge-tea at her home on Tenth street. On Saturday evening, February 19, Mr. and Mrs. Joel Chandler Harris, Jr., will give a bridge-supper for Miss Rogers and Mr. Law. Mrs. R. Winston Harvey will entertain at a bridge-tea at her home on Lullwater road Monday, February 21. On Tuesday evening, February 22, following the wedding rehearsal, Mr. and Mrs. LeRoy Rogers will entertain the wedding party at a bridge-supper at their home at East Lake.

Lecture Series
At High Museum.

A great deal of interest is being shown in the Lucy Stanton lecture series, which will be at the High Museum of Art through February and March. The course is being sponsored by the art department of the Atlanta Woman's club. Mrs. W. B. Price-Smith, president of the club, feels that everything of art interest in Atlanta should be centered in the museum and that the donor of the new museum, Mrs. J. M. High, should be honored by such interest in her magnificent gift.

Registered U. S. Patent Office.

BY THE LATTER PART OF SEPTEMBER, 1859, JOHN BROWN HAD GATHERED A BAND OF FOLLOWERS AND COMPLETED PREPARATIONS FOR HIS PROPOSED RAID ON HARPER'S FERRY TO FREE SLAVES. HE THEN WAITED FOR A FAVORABLE TIME TO STRIKE THE BLOW.

ON OCTOBER 16, WITH NINETEEN MEN HE SWOOPED DOWN UPON THE TOWN, SEIZED THE GOVERNMENT ARSENAL THERE AND CUT THE TELEGRAPH LINES.

Brown's Raid at Harper's Ferry.

STUNNED BY THE UNEXPECTED ATTACK, THE INHABITANTS OFFERED SLIGHT RESISTANCE AND BROWN WAS ABLE TO LIBERATE A NUMBER OF SLAVES AND SEIZE SOME CITIZENS AS HOSTAGES. THE NEGROES WERE BEMIDDERED AND SHOWED NO DESIRE TO TAKE PART IN THE RAID.

THE TOWNSPEOPLE OF HARPER'S FERRY QUICKLY RECOVERED FROM THEIR ASTONISHMENT AND SPRANG TO ARMS. TRAPPED IN THE TOWN, BROWN AND HIS FOLLOWERS HURRIEDLY FORTIFIED THEMSELVES IN THE FIRE ENGINE HOUSE.

Don't Cast Money Aside When Aid Is Needed Most

You wouldn't wilfully cast money aside—especially when the need for financial assistance was greatest. Then why not get in line for your share in the event you fall victim to the accident wave, as so many are doing.

In other words, why not insure yourself cheaply but efficiently against tragedy in a train wreck, in a crash of automobiles, under the wheels of speeding cars, in burning buildings.

You can do it cheaply by taking advantage of the offer of The Constitution to every one of its readers between the ages of 15 and 70 of a $7,500 travel accident insurance policy issued through the old and reliable North American Accident Insurance company. More than $50,000 already has been paid on claims of Constitution policy holders.

The same protection purchased elsewhere would cost you many times the sum involved under The Constitution's offer, and it means security for your wife, your children—those you hold dearest.

All that is necessary for you to do is to become a subscriber to The Daily and Sunday Constitution in order to secure the policy.

Watch for advertisements of this great policy appearing regularly in this paper, and get your protection without delay.

Operation on Skull May Save Life of Boy Hit by Automobile

Ten-year-old Hubert Reeves, who was struck down by an automobile Tuesday afternoon, was in a critical condition at Grady hospital at a late hour Wednesday night, following desperate efforts by physicians in charge to save his life by a trepan operation.

Young Reeves, who is the son of C. W. Reeves, of 1381 Sylvan road, was riding on his bicycle at the corner of Dill and Hartford avenues when struck down by an automobile driven by P. P. Hinds, 19, of 1299 Alene avenue, against whom no case has been made.

The boy was rushed to Grady where it was found that his skull was fractured. The operation which followed was said to be one of the most delicate ever performed at Grady.

CHRISTMAS EVE, 1783, WASHINGTON WAS AT HOME AT HIS BELOVED MOUNT VERNON, AFTER EIGHT LONG YEARS OF ABSENCE IN THE WAR. THE WASHINGTONS WERE HOSPITABLE PEOPLE AND ROYALLY ENTERTAINED THEIR NEIGHBORS. THERE WAS A CONSTANT FLOW OF GUESTS TO MOUNT VERNON, AND WASHINGTON WAS ALWAYS GLAD TO SEE HIS OLD COMRADES. LAFAYETTE VISITED HIS OLD COMMANDER AND THE OCCASION WAS A VERY DELIGHTFUL TIME, OVERFLOWING WITH THE HOSPITALITY FOR WHICH MOUNT VERNON WAS NOTED.

Famous Old Recipe for Cough Syrup

Easily and cheaply made at home, but it beats them all for quick results.

Thousands of housewives have found how to save two-thirds of the money usually spent for cough preparations, by using this well-known old recipe for making cough syrup. It is simple and cheap but it has no equal for results. It gives immediate relief, usually stopping an ordinary cough in 24 hours or less.

Get 2½ ounces of Pinex from any drugist, pour it into a pint bottle, and add plain granulated sugar syrup to make a full pint. If you prefer, use clarified honey, instead of sugar syrup. Either way, it tastes good, keeps perfectly, and lasts a family a long time.

It's truly astonishing how quickly it acts, penetrating through every air passage of the throat and lungs—loosens and raises the phlegm, soothes and heals the membranes, and gradually but surely the annoying throat tickle and dreaded cough disappear entirely. Nothing better for bronchitis, hoarseness or bronchial asthma.

Pinex is a special and highly concentrated compound of genuine Norway pine extract and palatable guaricol, known the world over for its healing effect on membranes.

To avoid disappointment, ask your druggist for "2½ ounces of Pinex" with directions. Guaranteed to give absolute satisfaction or money promptly refunded. The Pinex Co., Ft. Wayne, Ind.

Miss Grace Cuyler Will Wed Member Of French Nobility

New York, January 26.—(Special.) Announcement was made today of another international alliance of interest, the engagement of Miss Grace Cuyler, daughter of Mrs. Barton Cuyler, of 299 York avenue, New York, and San Francisco, to Count Albert de Mun.

Miss Cuyler, who is a member of the Junior League, was educated at the Convent of the Assumption in Paris and is also a graduate of Mrs. Randall McIver's school in this city. She is a descendant of Hendrik Cuyler, who came to this country from Hasselt, Holland, in 1699, and who was a prominent figure in early colonial days in Albany. On her maternal side she is the granddaughter of the late John Barton, one of the early settlers of San Francisco. She is also descended from Artemus Ward, major general under George Washington.

Count de Mun is the son of Count and Countess Henri de Mun, of 10 Avenue du Bois de Boulogne, Paris, and Chateau de Sassetot, France. He has a brilliant war record, receiving the cross of the Legion of Honor, croix de guerre, distinguished service order and British military cross. He is a grandson and the namesake of Count Albert de Mun, well-known statesman and orator who for many years and until his death in 1914 headed the right party in the chamber of deputies. The de Mun family is one of the oldest of the French nobility, dating back to the twelfth century.

Count de Mun was educated at Beaumont college, Old Windsor, England, and is a graduate of the University of Paris. For the last few years he has made his home in this country and at the present time is associated with the banking firm of Hemphill, Noves & Co.

The marriage will take place in this city on April 19.

T. E. L. Class Holds Meeting.

The T. E. L. class of First Baptist church, Decatur, held its regular business meeting in the classroom Monday, January 24, with Mrs. Kate Dawson as hostess.

Many interesting reports were heard from the committees.

A beautiful feature of the meeting was the installation of new officers for the coming year, after which a social hour was enjoyed. Mrs. Dawson, being assisted by Mrs. Alman and Mrs. Simpson.

French Alliance To Meet Thursday.

The French alliance will meet at the home of Mrs. H. M. Atkinson in the Ponce de Leon apartments Thursday, January 27, at 3:30 o'clock in the afternoon, when the following delightful program will be presented: The series of studies on Victor Hugo will be continued, led by the president, Charles Lordinas, who will speak on "Ruy Blas." Mrs. Charles L. McLean will recite several poems from Hugo, followed by favorite quotations from this author by members of the alliance.

A group of dances will be given by pupils of La Fontaine School of Dancing.

A French play by Andre de Lord and Jean Marsele, entitled "Mariage d'Amour," given by Mrs. Hal Davidson and Mrs. Laure Lenoir will conclude the program.

HOUSE REPUBLICANS PLAN CAUCUS FEB. 21

Washington, January 26.—(AP)—House republicans will hold a caucus February 21, to perfect their party organization for the next congress.

At that time Speaker Longworth and Representative Tilson, the majority floor leader, are expected to be re-nominated without opposition.

The question of inviting insurgents has not been decided.

Mr. Tilson said that pending the conference he could not say what would be done, but predicted that they would be invited if they desired to attend.

Two years ago the insurgents, headed by Representative Nelson, of Wisconsin, were barred from the caucus, and subsequently ousted by the republican committee on committees from all of the important committee posts.

At the caucus it is expected that Representative Madden, of Illinois, who two years ago opposed Mr. Longworth for the speakership, will place the name of his former rival in nomination.

The republicans will have a clean majority in the next house, so nomination will be equivalent to election.

ATLANTIC STEEL SUES TO RECOVER ON INCOME TAXES

Trial in United States court of the suit of the Atlantic Steel corporation to recover $202,467.67 and interest from J. T. Rose, collector of internal revenue, on income tax payments, probably will be concluded today or Friday. The hearing started on Monday before Federal Judge Samuel H. Sibley.

The case involves the sale of the former Atlanta Steel company to the Atlantic Steel company in December of 1915, the government claiming that the sale of the Atlanta company through David H. Wells was a "straw" sale, or a case of the company selling itself to itself to avoid payment of income tax, while the claims of the company are that the sale was a real sale, and that the amount sued for was wrongly collected.

Women's Peace-of-Mind under trying hygienic conditions is assured this new way. Gives absolute protection—discards like tissue.

By ELLEN J. BUCKLAND Registered Nurse

A DANCE, a sheer gown to be worn; a difficult hygienic situation. You need no longer give this complication a second thought.

The hazards of the old-time sanitary pad have been supplanted with protection absolute and exquisite. It is called Kotex . . . 5 times as absorbent as ordinary cotton pads.

Absorbs and deodorizes at the same time. Thus ending all fear of offending.

Discards as easily as a piece of tissue. No laundry. No embarrassment.

You get it at any drug or department store simply by saying "KOTEX." Be sure you get the genuine. Only Kotex itself is "like" Kotex. Women ask for it without hesitancy.

Try Kotex. Comes 12 in a package. Proves old ways an unnecessary risk!

KOTEX No laundry—discard like tissue

VETERAN ENGINEER LAID TO LAST REST

Funeral services for W. T. Milam, pioneer engineer of the Central of Georgia railroad, who died at his home in Griffin Sunday, were held at 3 o'clock Tuesday afternoon from the Mount Zion campgrounds. Interment was in the churchyard. Mr. Milam had been an engineer on the Central of Georgia road for 35 years.

He is survived by two daughters, Mrs. P. C. Smith, of Griffin, and Mrs. A. L. Carter, of Jennings, Fla.; one son, Wilbur L. Milam, of Atlanta, and three sisters, Miss Mattie Milam and Mrs. J. T. Roberson, of Griffin, and Mrs. J. R. Akin, of Temple.

O'Rourke Kayoes Kelly in Fourth Round; Letto Wins

Presbyterian College Loses to Athletic Club by 55-21 Score

Home Team Outpassed and Outdrilled by Visiting Quint—P. C. Unable to Make Shots at Basket Count—Stephens Is High Point Man.

BY C. F. THOMPSON.

The Atlanta Athletic club won another basketball game at the club last night. This time the score was 55-21 and the victims were the Presbyterian College basketballers.

It was a typical A. A. C. game. The locals were out-passed and out-drilled by a team that sported the classiest, fastest and most deceptive passing combination seen in Atlanta this year. They couldn't make their tries count.

Mr. Stephens, who also played football if you happen to remember, is a lucid illustration of their spotty basket shooting. Stamps could stand well to the side of the hoop and using enough English to take a ball through four squares without aid of cushions, make his tries count. And when he stood well within the free pass territory, where only a simple toss was necessary, he missed. Needless to say the Presbyterian missed more than they made.

Stephens High Scorer. Stephens, of the locals, was high point man, with 22 points. Stamps was next with 12 and Bennett, a center, next with 10. It was among other things the cleanest exhibition staged in Atlanta this year, only six fouls being called through the fringes, these coming in the first stanza and being equally divided between the combatants.

Wilson, Presbyterian forward, started the scoring in the first stanza with a field goal. The A's immediately ran up a six-point lead with Stephens making three floor shots and Bennett one. Stamps hurled one through from the side, and Robinson made two tosses down philanthropic pathway count for points. This brought the invaders within two points of the lead, but Brewer shot two in a row and the A's began to run away. Presbyterian never got their cleavage back.

Two more floor shots by Stamps, two by Robinson, and two and a free pass by Wilson brought the Presbyterian to 21 at the half. In the second stanza Stephens got three more floor goals, Bennett, two field count-

DAVISCOURT ACCEPTS TERMS FOR MAT BOUT

Richard Daiscourt has lost another decision. However, this one was lost outside of the squared circle, so it does not count against his record as a wrestler. It does reveal that he lacks something as a financier for Davis-court, all of his declarations to the contrary, had to give in to Promoter John Contos.

At least Daiscourt accepted the figure offered by Promoter Contos to appear in the main event of the wrestling show against Jim Browning at the city auditorium the night of February 3. Dick wanted more than Contos was willing to pay and made no bones about letting it be known.

Battle Started. Immediately a battle between Contos and Daiscourt was on with both parties to the squabble resorting to telegraph wire. Contos proved more adept at wiring insulting messages and when he put one on the wires to the effect that Daiscourt would never appear here again, unless he agreed to the February 3 match with Browning and terms, Daiscourt weakened.

Contos says that he has another match in mind, but that he is not ready to reveal its principals now. At any rate plans for the February 3 show are progressing and Contos declares that he has a fine show lined up. In proof of that statement he announced that the show will consist of two two-hour matches, with all of the principals being wrestlers who are well known and liked in these parts.

12 GRIDMEN OF '26 SEASON REPORT AT GA.

BY MARCUS BRYANT.

Athens, Ga., January 26.—Suffice it to say that spring football begins at the University of Georgia next Monday. Already Coach Harry Mehre is on the scene and Head Coach George Woodruff, along with Coach Jimmie Crowler, will complete the board of strategy with arrival Sunday.

The announcement further reads that the spring season will extend over a period of four weeks. That is, if the work is pleasing to the mentors, otherwise the entertainment will last an additional two weeks.

Oglethorpe's stormy Petrels will again hold a place on the spring calendar, in the way of a regular game. However, the date for this game remains to be announced. The Bulldogs and Petrels engaged in a similar fray last spring, creating a new vogue in spring grid activities.

Twelve of the letter men of 1926 will be absent when the roll is called for the spring leaving an identical number to form the nucleus for the 1927 machine. Letter men reporting for the spring work include Captain-elect "Chick" Shiver, Nash and Woodall, "Bear" Morris and Laughlin, guards; Gene Smith and Jacobson, tackles; Gene Smith and Johnson, quarterbacks; McGuire and Hooks, halfbacks, and McGraw, fullback. The roster will include reserves of last year and members of the last year's frosh outfit also.

Bulldog Boxers Meet N.C. Monday

Athens, Ga., January 26.—(Special.)—The scheduled boxing match between the Georgia Bulldogs and North Carolina, originally slated for Saturday night, has been changed to Monday, it was announced here today. This announcement follows the request of Carolina authorities that a change be made due to a period of examinations at that institution. Although the Bulldogs lost the initial match of the season to the Florida Gators last week, a much stronger team will face the Tar Heels in the meeting next Monday night. The squad is busy at work and several shifts have been made, presenting the Bulldogs vastly superior to the first match.

North Carolina has defeated the fist teams of Washington and Lee, Florida, and V. P. I. in the season in handy fashion and promises to give the Georgians what they are looking for in the way of hard-fought bouts.

Red and Black Harriers Get 'G's'

Athens, Ga., January 26.—(Special.)—Six members of the Georgia cross-country team will be awarded letters for their work, along with seven freshmen harriers, it is announced. Varsity men winning letters include W. R. Beaton, James Barrs, John Green, Charles Elliot, Eugene Yonce and Joe Heyman.

Dahlonga Beats Oglethorpe Co-Eds

Dahlonga swooped down out of north Georgia Wednesday night and defeated the Oglethorpe Co-Eds, 19 to 16, in an exciting basketball game which required an extra five minutes to complete. Both teams were about evenly matched, but it was the ability of the Dahlonga girls to hit the basket just a few times more, especially in that extra period, than the Co-eds, that decided the winner.

Misses Stigall and Hamilton, with six points each, starred for the Peachtree road team. The playing of Miss Pinson, who had eight points, was best for the visiting team.

Giants Boost Roster. New York, January 26.—(AP)—The New York Giants boosted their spring training camp roster to the 40-player limit by signing Joe Stryker, semi-pro

HAWK-EYE-ING SPORTS

BY DICK HAWKINS.

Our Friend, Mr. Daiscourt.

The "cannibals" are in receipt of some good news. Those of us who are sufficiently atavistic to enjoy the spectacle of two human beings attempting to take each other apart will be well satisfied when Dick Daiscourt and Jim Browning exchange blows in the wrestling match scheduled for February 3 at city auditorium.

And there is little question about the fact that blows will be exchanged. Wrestling is supposed to be a sport of strength and leverage but judging from past performances the matches between these two enemies are decided largely by the muzzle velocity of fists and elbows.

The importance of the match on one side of the fence is unquestionable. Browning would profit much by a victory over the Californian. In fact, beating him might give Jim a chance at the heavyweight title but Daiscourt has little to gain except some little personal satisfaction.

Daiscourt has defeated Browning on more than one occasion and not so long ago in Memphis the Wichita giant suffered the loss of several teeth at the hands of Rough Richard which left Browning in a most cantankerous frame of mind where Daiscourt is concerned.

The play that Browning made at the last match in challenging Daiscourt to a finish fight free of charge did not set well with the latter and it is now Daiscourt's avowed intention to erase the Kansas from his path for good and all. About the only way Richard will be able to do this is to beat him decisively with no chance of an alibi on the part of his opponent. With this fact in the mind of Daiscourt and with Browning in possession of the knowledge that a victory would be a great step toward a match for the crown, there should be a rather sizeable fight at city auditorium Thursday.

When Daiscourt was quoted as saying that he was the drawing card for the big crowd at the last matches it is entirely possible that that individual was not so far wrong. It is true that the champion was on the card but it is also true that few believed Sauer had much chance with Stecher.

Daiscourt's style, however, is such that he draws two opposite factions—those who believe he is the victim of injustice and those who will pay good money to see anybody whip him.

Rough Richard is clever. He plans his actions in the ring with the seeming intention of making himself as unpopular as possible which shows keen insight into the nature of sports fans—or for that matter of any audience.

Dick Daiscourt is the champion villain of the wrestling profession. He talks back at the audience, refuses to shake hands with opponents, argues with the referee and climbs through the ropes—all with the purpose of making the crowd hate him so sincerely that they will pay money to see him beaten or even hurt. And yet they call this a civilized world. We will see Daiscourt's next match and there will be many others.

COBB-SPEAKER VERDICT IS EXPECTED TONIGHT

Chicago, January 26.—(AP)—Ty Cobb and Tris Speaker may know by tomorrow night whether they are to be returned to good standing in organized baseball or kept outside.

Leslie O'Connor, secretary to Commissioner Landis, tonight said that in all probability the commissioner would give his ruling within two days, perhaps tomorrow.

O'Connor gave no intimation what the decision would be of the impression produced by baseball circles that both Cobb and Speaker will be vindicated.

CITY LEAGUE ON LAST LAP OF SCHEDULE

With the addition of the 122nd infantry the City Basketball league will open its second round with eight teams Thursday. Four good games are expected, especially the opening tilt between the Gulf Refining company and the Knights of Columbus, that starts at 7:30 o'clock. Georgia Railway and Power company will furnish opposition to the newcomers, the 122nd infantry, in the second game. The Gulf Refining company won the championship of the first half with the only perfect record, but each team will start anew in the last round and the winners of the second round will play the Gulf team for the championship.

The games Thursday will be played on the Atlanta Athletic club court, in the following order, starting at 7:30 o'clock: Gulf Refining company vs. Knights of Columbus. 122nd infantry vs. Georgia Railway and Power company. Atlantic Steel vs. Atlanta & Lowry. Terra Cotta vs. Southern Bell.

SEWANEE LOOP REACHES LAST LAP.

The four games Thursday will complete the first round of the Sewanee loop of the "Y" Church league. All the games should be closely played, especially the tilt between the Boothians and the Anchor Feds and the F. E. F. and Third Baptist affair. These teams are about evenly matched and Confederate Avenue Baptist stands a fair chance of winning from First Methodist.

The games will be played on the "Y" court in the following order: First Methodist vs. Confederate Avenue at 6:30 o'clock. Boothians vs. Anchor Feds at 6:50 o'clock. West End Presbyterian vs. All Saints at 7:10 o'clock. F. E. F. class vs. Third Baptist at 8:10 o'clock.

Fulton High Fives In Twin Bill Today

Atlanta's prep basketball activities will start this afternoon and end tomorrow. Fulton High will start the ball rolling with a twin bill, which brings Marietta to Wesley Memorial court this afternoon at 3 o'clock. Both the boy and girl teams will play, and both games promise to be equally interesting. The Fulton girls played the Decatur girls to a close score Tuesday, while the Cobb county girls didn't fare so well with the team from DeKalb.

Announcement has been made that the Tech High-University game, scheduled for Friday afternoon, has been changed until Monday, in order that the Smithies may play a scheduled game with Columbus High on Friday night.

pitcher from Atlantic Highlands, N. J. He is a brother of Irving Stryker, formerly a member of John McGraw's flinging corps.

EPWORTHERS PLAY 4 GAMES HERE TONIGHT

Two boys and two girls basketball games will be played tonight in the Epworth loop starting at 6:30 on the Wesley Memorial court.

The Capitol View girls will open the program by defending their unblemished record against the lassies from St. Paul. Capitol View is leading the B league and the ladies from St. Paul will have to do some hard playing to topple the leaders.

In the second game the Kirkwood girls will meet the Grant Park ladies in what promises to be a close game. Although the Grant Park girls have not won a game, their coach has been putting them through hard practices and they are expected to show considerable improvement.

May Pull Upset. Park Street, leaders of the B league, will meet the St. John girls in the third game of the evening. The hope is in favor of the Park Street lads, but St. John has been showing quite a bit of improvement and may spring a surprise.

The Capitol View vs. St. Paul game will be the feature game of the evening. It is a good fight from start to finish, and though the St. Pauls have been improving with leaps and bounds, which indicates that the Capitol View lads will have to be on the job to get the big end of the score.

The Schedule. Capitol View vs. St. Paul (Girls) 6:30. Kirkwood vs. Grant Park (Girls) 6:50. Park Street vs. St. John (Boys) 7:50. Capitol View vs. St. Paul (Boys) 8:10. All-Stars play Tate Saturday in Tate.

CONTINENTAL TRIP BY GENE SET FOR APRIL

New York, January 26.—Gene Tunney expects to make a trip to Europe in April, or as soon as he finishes the vaudeville and motion picture engagements which he now has.

Dudley Field Malone, attorney for Tunney, said today that Gene was planning to join him in Europe early in the spring. Malone sails Saturday for England. "England and the continent are very anxious to see the man who defeated Jack Dempsey," Malone said. He added that Tunney had received many attractive offers from theatrical interests in Europe, and said the champion might accept some of them. Tunney left this afternoon for Spokane, where he has a vaudeville engagement.

General Vance Injured.

Little Rock, Ark., January 26.—(AP)—General M. D. Vance, commander in chief of the United Confederate Veterans, was injured slightly tonight when he was struck by an automobile. Vance is sergeant at arms of the state senate.

Tampa Battler Given Decision After Fast And Furious Contest

Referee Gives Kid Carter Technical Knockout in Fourth Stanza of Curtain Raiser After McCue Was Slashed and Beaten To Pulp.

BY DICK HAWKINS.

A couple of little Mussolini boys known respectively as Tony Letto and Joe Ciro boxed and hammered their way through 10 rounds of fast fighting at city auditorium Wednesday night with one of them losing steadily from the first bell and the other carrying the fight but being outsmarted over the whole route.

Tony Letto was a deserved decision, but he was outsmarted by his opponent from bell to bell. Almost every round there came a time when it seemed impossible for the Missourian to stand on his feet for more than a few seconds, but the spectators learned just why Joe Ciro was a record of never having been knocked off his feet. He was no match for the Floridian in hitting or even on the defense, but he just naturally outgeneraled Letto. It was a good fight from start to finish, and though Ciro's face was cut to ribbons before the battle was scarcely half through he seemed to be hurt seriously by any of Tony's frequent punches.

Hits at Will. The fact that Letto hits like most heavyweight—a downward or side blow rather than an upward or outward blow—accounts for the fact that Ciro was still on his feet at the end of the bout. Tony was hitting the Kansas City boy almost at will, but Joe was usually going out when the blows fell, and even when Letto did land as he wanted to be failed to use his body in the punches and they were harmless except to open cuts on the face of his opponent.

It was a bloody fight and a fast one, fast enough and furious enough to please the most fastidious of customers.

The other part of the double finale was a rip-roaring battle which ended with another notch in the knockout stick of Tommy O'Rourke, Atlanta steel worker. Freddie Kelly of Richmond, was rocked to sleep in the fourth round of their scheduled 10-round battle on the end of one of Tommy's right hooks. It was a beautiful blow, if such a term may be applied to the gentle art of boxing, and came after the Atlanta boy had tried the fight to his opponent for three rounds.

Tommy had been landing regularly but not the way he wanted to use the fourth when Kelly made the mistake of leading with his left and trying to criss-cross. That was the opportunity O'Rourke had been waiting for and when Kelly failed to cover and tried to duck the hammer landed on his left jaw. He was down for the count of nine and when he came to his feet he was down again, that time to stay.

A battle royal, featuring a flock of Billy Hooper's colored boys, was the first attraction of the evening and the antics of Cowboy Kid, the little gold-twin with the white pants, were worth the price of admission.

Prior to the final bout, which was refereed by Dr. Carl Studer, new trainer for Young Strubling, Fat Elrod introduced W. L. himself, as well as "Grandpa" Strubling, who was known as Pa until the stork changed the complexion of things.

The scheduled match between Happy Hunter, negro battler, and Tiger Payne was called off because of the fact that Payne failed to appear and even the redoubtable Happy can not fight alone.

Rickard's Cauliflower Party Receives Jolt

New York, January 26.—(AP)—Tex Rickard's heavyweight elimination program was jolted today when two of the foremost contenders, Jimmy Maloney, of Boston, and Pauline, the Spanish wood-chopper, were reported as casualties, both with injured hands. Maloney's injury, received in training at Boston, was a severe one. Pauline, who was scheduled to fight against the Spaniard on the shelf for at least a month, thus had indefinite postponement of a match with Knute Hansen, Wisconsin heavyweight, February 7. Pauline suffered the injury in a recent bout at Tampa, Fla., with Homer Smith.

Jack Sharkey, another Boston heavyweight contender, turned down offers to replace Pauline against Hansen or substitute for Maloney against Risko on the ground that neither opponent was suitable.

Sharkey expressed willingness, however, to replace Maloney, if either is unable to go through with their elimination test.

The garden's program was further upset by a third casualty, Joe Dundee, Baltimore welterweight, who suffered a fractured foot in training at Baltimore. Dundee was to have fought either Knute Hansen or Willie Harmon February 25, but now will be out of action for probably two months. A match between Hudkins and Eddie Roberts, of Tacoma, is in prospect.

DEMPESEY NOT TO ENTER TOURNEY.

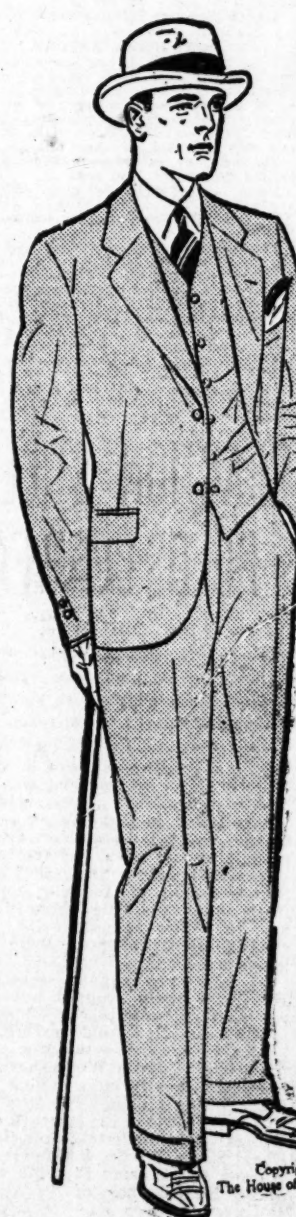

Fresno, Cal., January 26.—Jack Dempsey reiterated here today that he would not enter an elimination tournament planned by Tex Rickard for the purpose of obtaining an opponent for Gene Tunney. "I do not believe it is at all fair to ask me to enter such a tournament," Dempsey said. "I am still undecided as to what I will do. I shall return to Los Angeles Monday and go into intensive training again. In three or four months, if I can convince Tunney I am a worth-while foe, I believe I will be entitled to a chance to regain the title. Dempsey and his actress-wife, Es-

Erlanger Tonight.

"Love-in-a-Mist." The long awaited coming of charming Madge Kennedy will be realized tonight when she opens an all-time brilliant engagement of three nights and Saturday matinee at the Erlanger theater, in "Love-in-a-Mist," supported by Sidney Blackmer and the original New York Gaiety theater and cast. This attraction has everywhere been hailed as one of the most thoroughly delightful productions shown in many years. Miss Kennedy's performance is particular, and admirable, talent is for the impersonation of those ladies who are called nothing else than sinners because, after all, only one kind of sin is required of the female of the species. She is at her best when she is playing the part of a weak woman before whom strong men are helpless; the facile lie followed upon its detection by the sob which says, "Now be hard upon me if you dare," is her strength. Such is the role in the comedy of love, laughter and life, "Love-in-a-Mist," in which she will charm Atlanta theatergoers at the Erlanger theater tonight.

Erlanger Next Week.

"Ben Hur." Seats go on sale at the boxoffice this morning for the engagement of "Ben Hur," which begins at the Erlanger theater next Monday night, continuing for two weeks with two performances daily, at 2:30 and 8:30 o'clock.

The largest enterprise in picture history found its consummation in the staging and running of the epic "Ben Hur" which at Culver City, and the result of three years' work by Cecil De Mille and the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer staff is "Ben Hur," which will be disclosed at the Erlanger theater next week. Altogether the gigantic enterprise cost $4,000,000 and enlisted the labor of 150,000 persons. The great attraction will be brought here by a touring company, including a symphony orchestra of 20 pieces.

Loew's Grand.

(Vandeville and Pictures.) Great fun is being enjoyed by audiences at Loew's Grand theater this week where Julian Hall and his band are headlining on the vaudeville bill and where "Black Bottom" dancing contest is being staged under the direction of Miss Lee Arnold. Julian Hall also appears in a clever comedy skit with his partner, Miss Myra "Red" Dexter. The band plays a pleasing program of song numbers and also presents numerous comedy skits. The "Black Bottom" contest is one of the most interesting and one of the funniest dancing contests ever staged in Atlanta. Bob Archer and Blanche Bedford offer a funny pantomime entitled "The New Janitor." Mabel Drew, with Paul Humphreys at the piano, sings a pleasing program of song bits. The Three Lonesomes present a sensational casting act that is a thriller. The Low feature picture is "The Flaming Forest," a wonderful spectacle produced on a stupendous scale with Antonio Moreno and Rene Adoree in leading roles.

Howard Theater.

"It." Elinor Glyn, author of "Three Weeks," "Six Days," etc., returns to the world of the cinema via Clara Bow's initial starring production, "It," which is playing at the Howard theater this week. In "It," Madame Glyn has photographically explained the theory which has enraptured the globe and puzzled millions of people. Antonio Moreno is featured opposite Miss Bow.

The stage attraction is John Murray Anderson's "The Family Album," which is one of the finest of these offerings.

The Metropolitan.

"The Greater Glory." colossal screen epic now showing at the Metropolitan theater, represents more than a year of intense production on the part of June Mathis, famous screen writer, and a vast company of stars. The picture is screen adaptation of the celebrated "Viennese Melody" by Edith O'Shaughnessy, wife of the American ambassador at Vienna. The cast of principals includes Conway Tearle, Anna Q. Nilsson, May Allison, Ian Keith, Lucy Beaumont, Jean Herscholt and Virginia Southern. Next week Colleen Moore in "Twinkletoes."

The Rialto.

"(Marriage License?)" Imagine a father who meets a lovable young chap for the first time, vaguely recognizes him as a being like someone he has known, but never realizing that it is his own son whom he has never seen.

This is but one of the big dramatic moments in "Marriage License?," film version of the Broadway success, "The Pelican," at the Rialto theater this week.

Alma Rubens is featured in the leading feminine role.

Palace Theater.

Fairfax Theater.

"(The Man in the Saddle)." Hoot Gibson, who is, without question, the most popular western star of the screen, is featured today and tomorrow at the Fairfax theater in "The Man in the Saddle." Hoot is quite a comedian in addition to possessing all the requisites for a western star.

Tenth Street Theater.

"(The Sea Beast)." John Barrymore, famed on stage and screen, is seen in his latest screen opus, "The Sea Beast," today and tomorrow at the Tenth Street theater. The locale of the picture is the sea and whaling ports. It was adapted from the novel, "Moby Dick."

The Forsyth.

"(Alias The Deacon)." It is a wonderful and weird prologue Atlantaers are seeing this week. The picture is "Alias The Deacon," the mysterious and thoroughly entertaining comedy, at the Forsyth theater.

An old boy bar conceals the circle of traps and the identity of the hero of the show. He is a smooth chap.

West End Theater.

"(Duchess of Buffalo)." Connie Talmadge, comedienne of the Talmadge family of screen stars, is featured today and tomorrow in her latest comedy success, "The Duchess of Buffalo," at the West End theater. Tullio Carmanni, Italian screen star, makes his debut in this picture as Connie's leading man.

The Tudor.

"(Senor Daredevil)." A new western star makes his initial appearance on Atlanta screens when Ken Maynard, champion rider, comes to the Tudor in his first picture, "Senor Daredevil," starting today. Ken Maynard's ability as a rider and as an actor is fast pushing him into the front ranks of screen stars.

Coca-Cola Managers

GUESTS AT BANQUET

A dinner at the Piedmont Driving club tonight, given by Mr. and Mrs. Robert Woodruff, president of the Coca-Cola company, will feature the annual business session of regional and district managers of the United States devoted to the business of merchandising plans for 1937.

Officials of the company stated that 1936 was the biggest year in the history of the company and plans considered at this meeting call for a more expanded business during the coming year.

On Friday, the managers will be given a banquet at the Capital City club. Among the officers attending the meeting are Robert Woodruff, president; Harrison Jones, vice president; W. Brown, regional vice president; and general manager; Eugene Kelly, general manager for Canada, and Carl Thompson, of California.

Sam Katz, president of the Public Theaters corporation, was principal speaker at the meeting. He outlined a general meeting of officials and managers of the various theaters in Georgia, North Carolina, South Carolina, Alabama and Tennessee, operated by the Public corporation.

Mr. Katz's talk ended a two-day session at the Biltmore hotel, attended by more than 75 of the Public Theater managers in the southern states. He outlined plans and policies of the corporation for 1937 and spoke of new developments in the theater industry and of many that are to be opened during the coming year.

Practically all Wednesday morning was devoted to different business meetings, at which high officials of the corporation outlined particular work that comes under their supervision.

Following the afternoon session, visiting representatives were guests of local theater managers, and the official party left Atlanta in a private car at 8:50 o'clock Wednesday night for Miami, Fla., where a regional convention will be held.

During their visit here officials of the corporation seemed well pleased with the operation of their four theaters here. They were especially pleased with the new Keith-Orpheum-Abee movie and vaudeville house, it was stated.

After a brief visit to Miami, the official party will go to New Orleans, La., where they will be present at the opening of the New Sanger theater next week.

FLOGGING OF CONVICTS IS HELD LEGAL IN N. C.

Raleigh, N. C., January 26.—(AP)—Flogging of convicts is legal in North Carolina, the state supreme court unanimously ruled today. Chief Justice Stacey said objections to the practice to the legislature for remedial action. The case came before the supreme court on appeal from superior court Judge A. M. Stacey fined L. E. Revis, Buncombe county superintendent of prisons, $75 and costs for whipping Lee Cody, a prisoner. The court's decision was reversed.

The chief justice said the question involved was the power of the legislature to enact a flogging law and the court held that such power existed.

The flogging law was passed by the 1923 legislature.

Colder Weather, Freezing Friday, Atlanta - Bound

Cold, disagreeable weather is predicted for Atlanta today, with temperatures down to freezing by Friday morning, by G. F. von Herrmann, chief of the United States weather bureau.

He will fall intermittently during the day, with the thermometer near freezing, with a strong northeast wind, he said. The precipitation will change to snow in the extreme north portion of the state today, Mr. Herrmann said.

These lowering temperatures will be Atlanta's comparatively mild share in the continental weather with sharp winds originating in the Canadian Rockies, and now holds the eastern seaboard in the grip of sub-zero temperatures. The Carolinas have already felt the sting of the abnormally sharp winds, and increased cold, accompanied by rain and wind, is expected to be felt as far south as Florida.

Upper Michigan and Minnesota reported down to minus 20 to 26 below zero, and at White River, on the northeast shore of Lake Superior, the mercury fell to 50 below. North of the Mason-Dixon line the weather remained clear, seeming to intensify the cold. Relief agencies in New York and other eastern cities were preparing to send relief to the homeless in the poor districts.

Temperatures had a 10-point range Wednesday, the lowest being 40 degrees below zero at White River. The thermometer will register about 42 degrees this morning, dropping gradually during the day, it was predicted.

SUB-ZERO COLD.

New York, January 26.—Sub-zero temperatures are predicted for the United States today on the wings of a stiff gale originating in the Canadian Rockies. Weather bureau forecasts said the cold would be more than 40 degrees below zero by Thursday night.

Atlantic seaboard states as far south as the Carolinas shivered under the grip of the cold, which accompanied the coldest weather was reported from farther inland.

Upper Michigan and Minnesota reported down to minus 20 to 26 below zero, and at White River, on the northeast shore of Lake Superior, the temperature fell to 50 degrees below.

Official forecasts from Washington indicated "much colder tonight and Thursday in every locality," with the coldest weather on the southern Pacific or Gulf coast. Even Florida and the Carolinas were expecting rain and cooler weather.

North of the Mason-Dixon line the skies remained clear, which seemed to intensify the cold.

Relief agencies in New York and other large cities of the east were preparing to supply coal and clothing to families in the poor districts.

PEACH CROP NEEDS COLD SPELL.

The fortune of the state peach crop is yet undetermined, in the opinion of O. P. Conner, chief of the state meteorologist, here. Reports from the Fort Valley section state that buds are swelling rapidly, and it is under the impression that the crop will be a good one.

However, the cold snap which accompanied the rapid decline in temperature in the east increased in force after sundown.

In New York the mercury began tumbling at midnight, and by 2 o'clock had reached 5 above zero, a drop of 25 degrees.
